Pleasanton may split fire, police

PLEASANTON — The brief existance of a Department of Public Safety, which controls both fire and police duties, may end next Tuesday when city manager Clay Brown recommends the city council ax the three-year-old program, thus restoring independent fire and police departments.

The concept of a combined public safety department has met opposition from firemen in particular since it originated. Dennis Lawrence, representing Local 1974 of the International Association of Firefighters told The Times two seperate departments are "the only way to go."

"The two jobs are incompatible. Public safety is a misnomer," Lawrence said, "A policeman has his job and a fireman has his job. It's like trying to say all construction workers are carpenters."

If approved by council members, Brown's recommendation would reinstate seperate departments, each with its own chief reporting directly to the city manager.

Brown claims the good aspects of a combined department wouldn't be lost since he would be working with both departments and coordinating anything necessary.

As Brown plans it, the police department would be headed by Walt McCloud, current head of the department of public safety and former police chief. McCloud would be assisted by Captain Ron Nelson and Lieutenant Dave Freeman.

The fire department would also be headed by its own chief and an assistant. Both positions would have to be filled before the departments go on their own.

Also in Brown's reorganization report is the recommendation to form a new department of public works and utilities to be headed by the current director of public works, Alan Campbell. This would combine all the engineering and maintenance functions of Pleasanton into one department where there are now three.

Additionally, a department of planning and community environment would be headed by Bob Harris, replacing the defunct department of community development.

Should council members agree and reorganize the city, it could cost between $26,000 and $31,000 a year, depending upon salary changes set by the council. Most of that cost would come from adding the position of assistant fire chief, a position which Brown recommends be paid between $1,720 and $2,150 a month.

All reorganization recommendations go before council members Nov.8, at their next meeting.

Test ban possible

Times Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Temporarily, at least, the scoffing has stopped.

Officials here are now taking seriously the possibility of a comprehensive nuclear test ban, the kind of ban which would fundamentally change the entire weapons program at Lawrence Livermore Laboratory.

Causing the change in attitudes is a statement by Soviet Leader Leonid Brezhnev Wednesday. Brezhnev called for a "ban on all nuclear weapons tests for a definite period" and "a moratorium covering nuclear explosions for peaceful purposes."

Until that statement the Soviets had been holding in favor of allowing peaceful tests. That position had complicated discussions because of U.S. fears that weapons tests could be disguised as peaceful ones.

The history of nuclear test diplomacy dates back to the earliest days of LLL. Since the Lab's inception the heart of the weapons program has been the test, i.e., the experiment which tells scientists if they are on the right track.

For the first 10 years, the tests were conducted above ground in the South Pacific. Entire Lab divisions would ship out.

Then came the 1963 Limited Test Ban Treaty, and the U.S. shifted all its tests to Nevada, where they are conducted underground.

As part of that treaty, the U.S. and Soviet Union committed themselves to achieve a total ban on all nuclear explosions.

As the years wore on, though, and underground nuclear explosions were demonstrated to be safe, the American committment to a total ban began to waver.

Although lip service was still given to the cause at the highest levels of government, lower levels were beginning to raise doubts. Playing a part in that Dr. Michael May, formerly director of LLL, formerly a

Hectic and frantic on Stanley

Lanes are shuffled for construction

LIVERMORE — The lanes are admittedly a little mixed up along Stanley Boulevard lately, with the construction work. But yesterday and today may be even more confusing to some drivers. Especially if they are going faster than 25 miles per hour.

"People just follow the car in front of them. If the first guy messes up, they'll all mess up," observes Bill Hart, flagman on the construction site.

"They'd all know what was happening if they were going 25 m.p.h. But look at that guy. Was that 25 m.p.h.?" he says as a car whizzes by, missing the bright orange cones but managing to stay in his designated lane.

Work crews are laying the last segment of storm drain in the westbound lanes before they begin resurfacing it. So for about a half-mile strip of road, westbound traffic is diverted into one of the newly laid eastbound lanes.

While he was flagging traffic along, a truck made a left turn off Stanley Boulevard. He was promptly followed by a white sports car. The bewildered driver of the sports car frantically weaved among the orange cones,barely getting back into the proper eastbound lane before a stream of westbound cars approached.

"See what I mean?" The exasperated flagman motioned the traffic along.

It should all get back to a somewhat normal traffic flow once the storm drain is laid. "This will be great when it's all done," Hart sighed. "Two lanes of traffic going each way."

Chowchilla tale of hysteria from deputy

OAKLAND (AP) — A sheriff's deputy testified Thursday that the abducted Chowchilla children, finally released from their underground prison, feared that law officers were kidnappers in disguise who had come to bury them again.

Lt. Edward Volpe, the first officer to arrive at the Livermore gravel quarry where the children were found, said "the scene was one of hysteria, paranoia, screaming, crying, laughing.

"The kids were saying they were afraid we were dressed in disguises and would bury them again.

"That's when I called my wife to come and help out," the officer said. "We had to forceably carry the kids on the buses because they were afraid to get on a bus again."

EBAL girls' swim tourney

Amador Valley High School will host the East Bay Athletic League girls' swimming tournament tomorrow morning.

The competition begins at 9 a.m. San Ramon won the dual-meet title and Granada finished second. Host Amador Valley was third with a 5-2 record.

Christmas bazaar slated

One of the first Christmas bazaars of the season will be held Friday and Saturday, Nov. 4 and 5 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at Shannon Park Community Center.

"The Neighborhood Holiday Show and Sale" will offer a collection of hand-crafted gifts. Lunch, at $3.50 per person, will be served with proceeds to benefit the Valley Volunteer Bureau.

Woman of Year luncheon

The annual Woman of the Year awards sponsored by Pleasanton Jaycee Wives will be the annual Woman held Saturday at the Pleasanton Hotel starting at 11:30 a.m.

Elteen Kirschbaum will be the guest speaker. The four finalists vying for the top honor are Nancy Cotton, Sharon Kosch, Mattie Tucker and Dora Spence. Tickets for the luncheon at $6 each are available by calling 462-4394.

El Charro link

County will build truck route

OAKLAND — The long - awaited link from Stanley Boulevard to El Charro Road — for gravel trucks, anyway — was announced yesterday by the Valley's supervisor, Valerie Raymond.

Not all the details have been completed, but it appears the county will spend approximately $200,000 to build a road across Kaiser Sand and Gravel property to make the connection.

Hooking Stanley to El Charro (from there, trucks can roll to Interstate 580) has been a long - sought goal in the Valley.

However, not 100 per cent of the pie was obtained yesterday.

There still will be no public road link with access for motorists across private gravel company property up to I - 580.

And an estimated 70 per cent of the gravel trucks serving the four gravel companies along Stanley Boulevard still will go down Pleasanton's First Street when their destination is San Jose, Fremont, or other south bay cities via I - 680.

Rape suspect faces judge in Livermore

LIVERMORE — John Raymond Shook, 24, the man accused of kidnapping and raping an 18-year-old Chabot College coed, is scheduled to be arraigned this morning at 11 in Livermore municipal court.

Shook, nervous and somewhat pale, first appeared for arraignment Wednesday afternoon but was unprepared to enter a plea and his case was continued to allow him time to consult with the public defender's officeces three felony counts; kidnap, rape and assault.

Teachers okay new pact terms

Murray School District teachers Thursday gave solid support to the tentative contract agreement covering this year and next.

Vote on the tentative pact had been delayed twice. Murray trustees are expected to act on ratification at their regular board meeting Monday night.

The contract calls for reopeners on salaries, benefits, leaves and grievances. These items would be negotiated on again starting next spring.

iated on again starting With approval by Murray Teachers Association, only action by Amador, Murray and San Ramon school boards remain.

All meet next week and ratification votes are expected.

Mary Bobet, vice president of the MTA, said "now that the contract has been approved, we hope to see tMe membership get behind it and work to strengthen the association. Allan Petersdorf Jr. is president of the MTA.

One hundred seventy-six of 190 eligible members voted on the pact. No vote breakdown was available.

It is known, however, that a block of some 50 teachers, almost all at the district's two junior highs, were unhappy with some portions of the pact.

At a meeting last week, they voiced their objections but any significant disputes were apparently smoothed out in the intervening time between the meeting and the vote.

The district has seen several changes this year, not only at the district office level, but in the makeup of schools. Frederiksen will be converted to intermediate school usei with the project likely to take the remainder of 1977-78, Dublin now houses students from Valley Christian Center School, and Murray, Nielsen, Dublin and Donlon are now K-6.

Ecologists laud GE nuclear plant closure

Friends of the Earth lauded the Nuclear Regulatory Commission's decision to shut down a reactor at General Electric Company's Vallecitos Nuclear Center near Pleasanton and urged the entire facility be closed due to earthquake faults near the site.

In a letter to NRC Acting Director Edson G. Case, the San Francisco - based ecology group said that until a safety assessment is completed, "the health and safety of Bay Area residents is jeopardized by potential earthquakes near the Vallecitos site."

Friends of the Earth criticized the NRC for failing to mention that VNC conducted "controversial" research involving breeder reactor fuels and reprocessing spent fuel rods in its press release announcing the shutdown order. It said the release instead discussed the importance of the radioisotopes produced at VNC.

The reactor was ordered shutdown Oct. 27 after new geological maps showed evidence that the Verona earthquake fault comes within about 200 feet of the facility. Officials said movement on the Calaveras fault, a major component of the San Andreas fault system, would probably cause simultaneous movement on th Verona fault.

Friends of the Earth said that radioactive waste storage facilities "are directly above the Verona fault as shown in the map published by the U.S. Geological Survey in September 1977."

Additionally, the group says, a plutonium fuels laboratory located at VNC contains 20 to 25 "plutonium glove boxes" used for breeder reactor fuel fabrication research. "If an earthquake damaged the hot cells, glove boxes, or filter systems in these labs at Vallecitos, significant quantities of radioactive iodine gas, plutonium particles, and other radioactive materials could be spread throughout the densely populated Bay Area," the group claims.

The earthquake threat at Vallecitos also poses a hazard to water supplies, the group says, because Hetch Hetchy and South Bay Aqueducts pass within a few miles of the nuclear center.

"In as much as General Electric built a reprocessing facility at Morris, Ill., inoperable because of design inadequacies, the public can be expected to be concerned about the older reprocessing facility at Vallecitos," the ecology group claimed.

GE spokesman Ken Clemens said the Morris, Ill. plant was an attempt "to develop a plant applying a new approach to the reprocessing of spent nuclear fuel, but it was never put into operation due to problems ssociated with this facility's unique technology. Before committing the facility to operations, GE performed a technical audit of all systems using our own experts and determined that in terms of throughput, the process would not operate to our satisfaction."

In addition to producing more than 30 radioactive isotopes for 200 customers worldwide, Clemens said VNC "is one of a number of private laboratories which fabricates small quantities of mixed - oxide fuels. In the case of VNC, this work is all done for the Department of Energy on a program or project basis."

Kids feared cops were kidnapers

He said the smaller children several times leaped off the sheriff's buses and would not return unless their bus driver, Ed Ray, stayed with them.

"The children were saying things like, 'Are these real policemen? Or are they going to put us back in the ground?'"

The 26 children and Ray, kidnapped in a bizarre school bus hijacking July 15, 1976, clawed their way out of a buried moving van after 16 hours underground.

Some of the children earlier gave their accounts of the imprisonment at the trial of their three admitted kidnappers — James Schoenfeld, 26, Richard Schoenfeld, 23, and Fred Woods. 26.

If found guilty of causing bodily injury to the children, the men would face life imprisonment with no chance of parole.

Testimony at Thursday's session centered on the demeanor and physical condition of the victims when they escaped. The defense team scored one victory by eliciting testimony from a pediatrician that there were no major injuries apparent when he examined the youngsters the night of July 16.

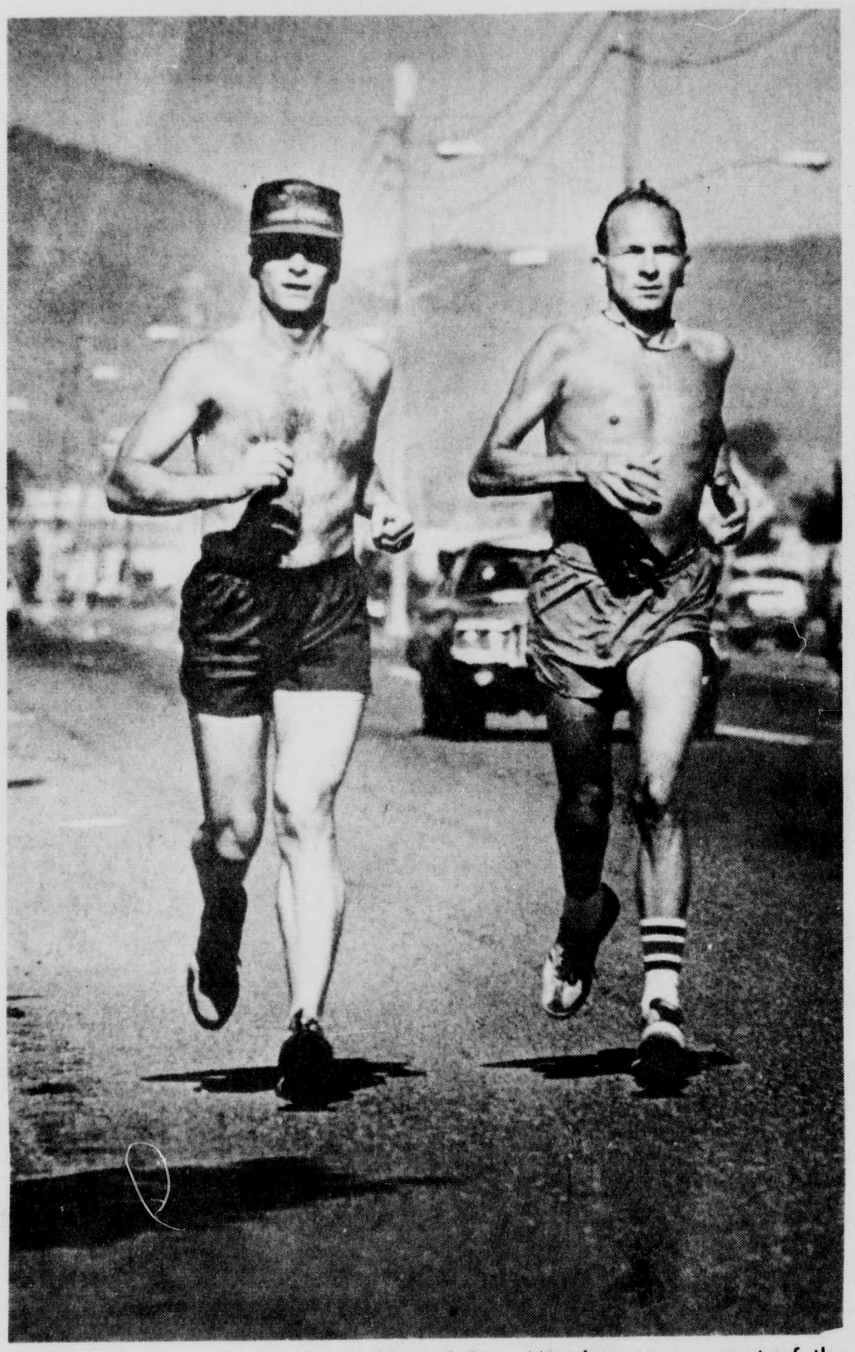
As bus driver Ray and his wife watched tensely from spectator's seats in the courtroom, Volpe described his first encounter with the bus driver, then clothed only in underwear because the kidnappers had taken his clothing.

LAVWMA board OK's pipeline aid

DUBLIN — The Livermore-Amador Valley Water Management Agency (LAVWMA) last night quickly wrapped up loose ends to get the 'super pipeline' project rolling.

The board voted unanimously to accept $2.9 million from the state Step 3 grant offer, thus finishing all paper work needed to secure federal and state funds.

Also by unanimous voKe board members retained the CH2M-Hill firm as engineering consultants for the reclamation study, and the firm of Stone and Youngberg as financial consultants to manage bond sales needed to raise $12.5 million of the estimated $38 million needed to fund the project.



Clorox engineers Jim Rader (left) and Don Mittelsteate are part of the Nooners, the runners drivers on Hopyard Road see almost everyday at about lunch time.

Future of weapons work fuzzy at Lab

member of the U.S. Strategic Arms Limitations Talks (SALT) team, and now back at LLL as an advisor.

May, who had once been head of the weapons program itself, wrote an article during the Ford administration years arguing that a test ban would be destabilizing in the arms race. In other words, it would result in untested weapons being placed in various stockpiles.

He said the resultant uncertainty would spur arms production as an attempt to deal with any ev the resntuality.

After making the rounds of the Energy Research and Development Administration hierarchy that article surfaced as a signed piece in the Wall Street Journal.

However, when President Carter came into office, he immediately moved in the other direction. In his first week in office, Carter announced his desire to see a comprehensive test ban.

Even then, many in ERDA and elsewhere thought such a ban an unrealistic idea. The reason was what are known as peaceful nuclear explosives (PNE's). Designed to excavate canals or mines, or to change the course of rivers, these devices have been variously seen for 20 years as everything from essential tools in the pursuit of hidden energy deposits to a charade.

As The Times reported last week, the U.S. has — after years of effort and millions of dollars in expenditures, more at Livermore than any place else — given up on PNE's. Part of the reason was environmentalist opposition.

But the Soviets, according to all reports, had not given up. With a society less developed than ours, the Russians still had some massive projects in mind for PNE's.

In fact, Soviet interest in PNE's had dominated test talks for years. Pending now before the U.S. Senate is a pair of treaties which would limit all military tests to 150 kilitons and which would provide for U.S. observation of Soviet PNE shots.

Those treaties, which were languishing before, have probably been blown out of the legislative water by this week's developments.

Nevertheless, the signing of those treaties have invovled LLL in three ways.

One, the Lab has been complying with the 150 kiliton limit ever since the treaty was signed in March of 1976, even though they are not officially in signed in March of 1976, even though they are not officially in effect until ratified by the Senate.

Two, the Lab was involved in preparation for the on-site observation of the Russian PNE tests, if any were ever to take place.

And, third, several Lab scientists most prominently Milo Nordyke, had spent considerable time in Moscow negotiating the agreement.

As to the meaning of Brezhnev's latest statement, people in Washington are wondering if it should be taken as an indication that the Russians too have given up on PNE's. Their program had not been proceeding as quickly as they reportedly had hoped.

At any rate, nobody here is suggesting that Brezhnev's statement should not be taken at face value, even though it would be entirely possible for the Soviets to throw up road blocks during negotiations over varification procedures.

Another possibility is that opposition may develop in Washington. Until now, the only controversey that has surfaced publicly about test bans is the question of varification. The idea that a total ban — varifiable or not 'ay be a bad idea for the reasons May states has not received much attention.

It is known, however, that James Schlesinger, new Secretary of Energy, has always been a strong supporter of tests. When he was head of the old Atomic Energy Commission, Schlesinger personally travelled to the site of LLL's Amchitka test in Alaska as a way to demonstrate his confidence in the safety of the test.

Valley man heads police probe unit

OAKLAND — Pleasanton's Stan Kephart was appointed chairperson of the county human relations commission's police - community relations committee Wednesday.

The San Jose police officer, who was appointed to the commission two months ago by Supervisor Valerie Raymond, immediately asked for commission volunteers to tackle his first project. He will investigate an incident where one and perhaps two police officers allegedly drew guns on a crowd of 400 persons at Lakeside Park in Oakland.

The officers, one white and one black, allegedly were taking two black suspects into custody and the crowd supposedly tried to spirit the suspects away.

Joe Gamicia, a commission member even newer than Kephart, volunteered for the committee. Chaiperson Joan Huges suggested commissioners seek out people in their own communities to informally help out Kephart's committee, too.

Kephart mentioned that Oakland Mayor Lionel Wilson wants his city to explore the possibility of hiring an ombudsman to handle complaints about police and all other city departments. Kephart thought the commission ought to look at the idea to see if an endorsement is in order.

The commission did not have a quorum so it postponed scheduled discussion of a recommendation to urge supervisors to endorse an anti - Bakke position in the Supereme Court deliberations over Alan Bakke's reverse discrimination suit.

It also postponed action on a report calling for hiring 117 new Hispanic - American employes each year for the next five years to catch up bring the county work force up to parity on Hispanic membership.

'Clorox Nooners' brave elements to run, run

What do you do for.lunch?

A fattening hamburger, greasy french fries and a quick smoke are the answers for many people by but not the Clorox Nooners' a small group of workers at Pleasanton's Clorox Technical Center. They run — and run and run and run.

"We're all getting ready for the Livermore Marathon this year," laughed engineer Ed Campbell in the middle of the five-mile loop he ran at a 6:40 pace.

The Nooners' course starts at the Clorox offices on Johnson Industrial Drive, to Hopyard Road for the long stretch south to Western Pacific railroad tracks, then back for a nine-mile round trip. Some may run the five-mile course to and from West Las Positas Boulevard but everyday, rain or shine, at least a couple are out there.

The Nooners are officially registered with the Amateur Athletic Union and some run as much as 200 miles a month for AAU sponsored races. That can be hard on more than feet as cars speed by a 50 mph and occasional hecklers make things miserable.

"We had an incident earlier this year when a couple of kids started shooting fence staples at us," said chemist Glen Krawiec. The runners did not press charges but agree they would like to see the city's bike path on Hopyard extended north from West Las Positas to the freeway for an added safety margin.

However they continue to run, working to make it to the railroad tracks and back in an hour and shooting to break the three hour mark for the 27-mile marathon. Then a quick shower and a glass of milk or a soft drink before the lunch break ends.

Marching in big footsteps

Ken Thorne, Foothill drum major

PLEASANTON — Young Ken Thorne has a hard act to follow!

The new drum major of the Foothill High School marching band, beside being just a sophomore, is in his initial year as drum major of one of the better prep bands in the East Bay Area.

He succeeds Dan Bowe who majestically led the Falcon band for three seasons, and collected numerous awards in mace and military sections of band review competitions around the state.

The son of Tip and Carol Tipler, Ken was a drummer in the band as a freshman before deciding to try and fill the shako worn by Bowe.

With the help of Bowe and attendance at flag and drum major camps this past summer, Thorne started to adjust to "being out in front" and setting the pace for the bandsmen tutored by Bob Moorefield.

His first competition was at the Cupertino Band Review where he achieved a score of 92, very good but not quite sufficient to bring home an award.

At Santa Cruz, Thorne was given a 90 score but it was good enough for third-place in mace.

He moved up to a second-place in his third band review competition at Lodi.

Gaining confidence with each band review, Ken is hopeful of establishing his own standards so there'll no longer be anyone saying, "Oh, he's the boy who replaced Dan Bowe."

Basic skills for youth top educational priority

Delegates to the 36th Biennial Conference Phi Delta Kappa have ranked the basic skills and competencies needed by all youth as top priority.

This educational priority was ranked fifth in the survey taken of Diablo Chapter members earlier this fall. The Diablo Chapter is composed of teachers in the Livermore-Amador Valley.

Phi Delta Kappa is a professional education fraternity dedicated to the promotion and improvement of publicly-supported and universally available education. The national conference was held in New York City and attended by Lloyd Teel, president-elect of the Diablo Chapter and an administrator in the Livermore Unified School District.

The top priority, as voted by members of the many PDK chapters across the nation, states, "What basic skills and competencies should all youth acquire and how might competency-based examinations contribute to their acquisition?"

The next four ranking priorities are as follows:

"How should public education be financed?"

"What principles should govern teacher selection, preparation, certification, and in-service education?"

"What are the major goals, roles, functions, and responsibilities of the public schools?"

"What are the schools' responsibilities in the affective omain, and particularly in the development of moral and ethical values?"

The second priority was ranked first by Diablo Chapter and the third priority sixth.

Teel notes that, "Except for the fifth-ranked priority, the Diablo Chapter did not differ significantly with other chapters throughout the country."

Teel says that four significant actions were taken at the Biennial conference.

A task force is to be established to determine what basic skills and competencies all youth should acquire, to identify and report on promising practices used in teaching basic skills and in remediating deficiencies that competency-based examinations reveal.

The formation of a commission was mandated consisting of various segments of society. The commission would be charged with the task of recommending fair and equitable methods of funding public education that could apply to all states and school districts.

Upholstery class offered

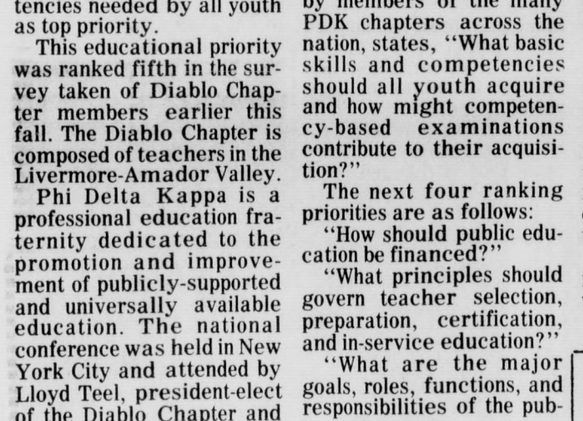
A new class in upholstery will be offered by Amador Adult Education starting this Saturday from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. at Camp Parks.

Some 40 persons were disappointed in not being able to enroll in previously scheduled upholstery classes, according to Amador Adult Education.

Fee for the upholstery class is $4, plus a $5 shop card.

This new class will cover broader curriculum as it will not only teach students to learn home upholstery, but auto upholstery as well. Students will be able to learn how to make diamond-tufted headboards, padded valances, and upholstered carnice boards.

For further information, call Amador Adult Education at 462-0022 or com to the offices, located in the trailer in the Amador Valley High School parking lot on Santa Rita Road in Pleasanton.



Student of Month

Senior Lloyd Chapman is congratulated by Amador Valley High School principal Ralph Laird for being selected Student of the Month for October. Chapman has been a member of the California Scholarship Federation and has been commended as a National Merit Scholar. He is a member of Block A for his participation in cross country, wrestling and track while also holding down a job with the Pleasanton Police Department and the Amador Valley School District. Besides his school activities, Lloyd is also a member of the Boy Scouts and an active member of his church's youth organization. He hopes to major in pre-law and political science in college. The Pleasanton Rotary Club honored Lloyd at their luncheon of Oct. 27.

The candidates

The mayor says "Maybe, it all depends..."

Another incumbent replies, "Haven't really thought about it."

A bunch of other likely prospects range from "You're the third person to ask me that" to "When's the election?"

It's coy season for the city council race. Three posts on the Livermore muni board up for grabs; two seats on the Pleasanton council will be on the ballot.

The , and the considerable cost in trying to reach all 11,183 dwelling units in Pleasanton, or the 16,979 households in Livermore, any serious candidate needs to start right now if he/she is to reach even a majority of the local electorate by March 14.

Perhaps this early reluctance is a reflection of "the prevailing turn - off on all politicians." We sincerely hope not, for the only losers there would be the public, not the politicians.

More likely, good people need the encouragement of other solid citizens to enter the campaign, offer themselves as contenders for the community's highest office. That's where you come in.

Yd water thing and you sure didn't like your last tax bill. You belong to the "What the people need is a representative who ..." club.

Okeh, so pay your dues. Think about your community, your government, your city council elections. Talk to neighbors about the incumbents, about the prospect of solid new candidates, about elected servants worthy of the town.

This is the month, now is the opportunity, here is the challenge. If you goof this up, don't start complaining about city hall next April.

San Ramon skies

When low - flying aircraft became a problem of tragic proportions for San Ramon Valley, residents like Pat and Fred Boom demanded action; and newspapers like The Times lent editorial weight for "proper enforcement of the law" designed to protect people on the ground from some irresponsible people in the air.

There were those to suggest that The Times, and Pat Boom, were "just trying to destroy recreational flying" with that campaign. The reaction sounded as illogical as the initial flying foolishness was irresponsible.

Recreational flying is a healthy, wholesome outlet for thousands of Bay Area residents. It enjoys particular exercise in the air above eastern Contra Costa and Alameda counties, where there is little conflict with scheduled and military aircraft flight patterns, and where the ground below is relatively undeveloped.

But as more of that ground is covered with homes, more people became exercised over the low - flying antics of a few misguided pilots. And when two of those craft crashed close by homes in the span of one year, local concern mounted to a demand for corrective action.

That is what Pat Boom sought in her campaign ... Federal Aviation Administration checks on pilot qualifications and on training procedures, particularly out of airports at Concord, Hayward and Livermore.

The evidence this week is that "the campaign is already paying off ... there is a big drop in the number of buzzing incidents throughout the San Ramon Valley." That is good news ... for home owners, for pilots, and for recreational flying.

Public pressure and newspaper publicity have already accomplished what federal regulation was failing to deliver. Sometimes it pays to holler.

Teacher's wage

Did you catch that report in Tuesday's Times reciting the comparative wage scales of teachers in the local school systems? It made for enlightening reading.

We don't suggest that $10,545 for a beginning teacher is a financial windfall; and neither is $22,464 out of line for a competent instructor with 20 years or more experience.

But, compared to your own income, we think those salaries — particularly when added to generous health and vacation benefits — hardly project the picture of starvation some teachers would paint, particularly around contract renewal time.

Good teachers should be rewarded ... but no more, no less than the rest of us dedicated breadwinners.

Public servants should be paid commensurate with what they would earn for similar service in the open market. Now that you have the facts, you can be the judge.

Ticketing trucks

Remember the last time you had to swing out of the freeway fast lane in order to keep from being run down by a ten - ton truck? But, even at 60 mph in the slow lane, this other trucker got his jollies by riding up your rear bumper?

The CHP advises it has been cracking down on the games some truck drivers play ... 4650 citations in September, down 14 percent from the August record of 5396 citations to offending trucks.

"Hopefully, it means truck drivers are getting the message," the CHP says of the September drop - off. Hopefully, but not for very long. Speeding, taigating and trucking mix like driving and drinking. Both should be hammered, hard and often.

FOCUS/ 'Voc-Ed' schools

Fly-by-nights

The "fly-by-night" operation may have finally been cornered.

Legislation just signed by Gov. Edmund G. Brown, Jr. will give consumers greater protection in dealing with businesses and schools which make vague or misleading disclosures.

And as a further precaution to the hundreds of thousands who annually encounter or get drawn into such relationships, the legislation signed into law puts strong restrictions on the transfer of ownerships of institutions. Licenses to operate private institutions will no longer be transferable from one owner to the next; the new law requires a new owner to apply to the Superintendent for authorization to operate. Further, all licenses must be renewed at least every three years.

California laws regulating private institutions are among the oldest in the nation, and they were developed when private schools were only a small segment in California education.

XON Arnett,
R-Redwood City, is to provide consumer protection through requirements for greater disclosure of information to prospective students (of private colleges and post-secondary institutions).

The disclosure must include school requirements and class offerings. Vocational schools which make claims about job opportunities will be required to provide information about their placement record.

The law lays the foundation for the Superintendent of Public Instruction, Wilson Riles, to develop a statewide program which will guarantee refunds to students in schools which close at mid-term.

There is also a "cooling off" clause in the new law. This is aimed at protecting prospective students against hard-sell techniques used by commissioned salespersons. The three-day period following the initial contact and signing of contract would permit, so Arnett contends, the prospective student to reconsider his involvement. The prospective student, thus, could cancel his or her enrollment without financial loss.

As a naive college-age lad, we recall becoming involved with an airlines school in just such a matter. When the crunch came, and the salesperson moved in for the commission, we started having second thoughts. This ired the salesperson who immediately applied what, in retrospect, were improper if not illegal pressure tactics.

Suffice to say we escaped the clutches of the "institution," but not without learning a lesson.

This new law will combat such occurrences through the requirement for more information up front.

Letters to the Times

SRV School Board

Editor, The Times:

The role of the "doomsayer" is not a popular one. The public fancy is for pleasant enteraining things. And so it is with those of us who openly oppose the LAVWMA Agency in all it proposes of pipelines to export reclaimed water to the Bay. Proponents of the pipeline in the environmental impact report say that the pipeline is intended to protect the Niles Cone from which Fremont draws some of its municipal water supply. It will do nothing of the sort.

The first rains that fall in the Tri-Valley after every dry spell will still wash the filth and pollutants from our streets and gutters that have accumulated since the last storm, down the creek and into the Niles Cone. The point is, that if the protection of Fremont's water supply is the reason for the pipeline, then Fremont should be building a pipeline to take the water directly from the aqueducts just as Zone 7 does. . .

Drought is by far the most fearsome danger ... It is especially bad for California at this time because of the millions who have only recently come here to live . . . I wrote Governor Warren of this problem before it was known he was on his way to the U.S. Supreme Court. As you can see, nobody paid much attention to the "Doomsaying" then and little has been done to alleviate the danger.

Damming our wild rivers has been "sold" as a solution to the water shortage problem, but what good are dams if there is no rain? And then, it is quite likely that damming the rivers has made the incipient problem worse. . .

Having acknowledged the possibility of continuing if not worsening drought in the future, we should be working to double our water service line to entire cities in order to use the reclaimed water again. It is my understanding that Provo and Ogden Utah do exactly that. In this way recycled water can be used to keep our yards green, to water golf courses and to fight fires effectively reducing out total water requirement by almost half. Is this too difficult a concept for the master minds that manage such things?

The CARD Committee appears to be the only hope of preventing this disaster. We need your help. Join us now at the Pleasanton Hotel Monday nights at 7:30 P. M.

Water doomsday

Editor, The Times:

On November 1st, we will elect one member to the San Ramon Unified School District's Board of Trustees. Personally, I was very pleased to hear that Michael Wahlig had decided to run.

During the seven years I sat as a School Board Member, Mr. Wahlig was a familiar face in the audience. As a result of his interest and dedication, he has gained an excellent knowledge and background of the District's programs. As a member of a citizens educational advisory committee, he has obtained a working knowledge of the educational opportunities available to the students of our Valley.

At a recent candidate's night, Mr. Wahlig expressed a strong desire to continue the District's objective to obtain a superior education for all the students. He indicated this was of utmost importance and that he was not willing to settle for average achievement. He also exhibited an in-depth knowledge of the housing and financial requirements.

It is because of Michael Wahlig's attitude towards children, excellence in education, and fiscal responsibility combined with the knowledge and experience he has gained in past years, I strongly recommend him as a member of the School Board.

CAPITOL REPORT

Water lid

By David Hoffman
Time's Washington Bureau

Rep. George Miller, a critic of federal water subsidies to farmers in the San Joaquin Valley, has proposed a bill that would revise the way irrigation water is sold.

Miller, D-Martinez, says his measure would eliminate "billions of dollars" in subsidies to valley farmers, and "assure that taxpayers are receiving a fair price for their water."

Miller's bill comes on the heels of a federal task force report that estimated Central Valley farmers stand to reap more than $2.7 billion in subsidies from U.S. taxpayers because they have received cheap water from federal projects.

There's little chance that Miller's legislation will see any action this year, since Congress is about to adjourn and the calendar for the remaining time is crowded.

But, by introducing the bill, Miller is attempting to put other lawmakers on notice that he opposes the subsidies, which are likely to remain an issue for some time to come.

The subsidies are created because many valley farmers — such as those in the Westlands Water District — have received low-cost, 40-year contracts for cheap federal water. Under these contracts, they pay only about a third of the cost of water on the open market. Moreover, they don't have to repay the federal government for the original costs of the dams and canals — as Congress intended when the projects were authorized.

Thus, the taxpayers are picking up the difference — amounting to a subsidy to the farmers.

The subsidies have been particularly controversial because of the fight over Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr.'s proposed $3.5 billion water plan, which includes the Peripheral Canal. Opponents of the canal, including Miller, say the 43-mile facility will only increase the amount of subsidy to valley farmers.

In addition the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation has proposed power rate increases of between 180 and 300 percent for customers of the Central Valley Project — in part to compensate for the subsidies.

Miller's bill would eliminate one part of the subsidy: water that's sold to farmers at $7.50 an acre-foot, or about a third of the actual cost.

Specifically, Miller's bill would set up minimum rates for water sales to farmers. These rates would have to reflect the actual cost of delivering the water — including the energy costs — and the amount of water necessary for growing crops "indigenous" to the area.

Thus, the bill would have the effect of increasing water prices for crops that aren't indigenous — such as cotton and rice which need heavy irrigation. Miller said this would make farmers think twice before planting crops that consume large amounts of water in dry years.

In addition, Miller's bill would allow for adjustment of water prices at least every two years.

A spokesman for the Bureau of Reclamation said that it is current practice to include such "escalator" clauses in water contracts that are now being signed.

But Miller's chief aide, John Lawrence, pointed out that no such adjustment clause was placed in the contracts awarded in Westlands the nation's single largest reclamation district.

Miller again criticized the Bureau of Reclamation for approving long-term water contracts. "If we ran a water business like the bureau has run our business for us," Miller said, "we would have broke a long time ago, and the only reason we are n[illegible] is because the burden of underwriting this pro[illegible]m has fallen to others."

Miller added: " ... We have seen federal contractors (farmers) grabbing whatever water they can for the cheap rate, and we have seen the Bureau of Reclamation do nothing ... to assure that federal taxpayers receive a fair price for their water."

Farmers in the valley — such as those in Westlands — have maintained that the subsidies are needed to bolster the agriculture are going to big corporations, instead of the small family farmers which Congress envisioned in the 1902 Reclamation Act.

round the town

Airlines are 1) Friendly, 2) Tasty, 3) Always on time.

The answer depends on which commercial you listen to. Gerald Jetstream listens to them all. That is why, when he and Mrs. Jetstream were preparing to jet across the country, Gerald was well prepared.

"Western Airlines provides the extra leg room," Jetstream advised his wife, wisely. "United flies the friendly skies. But TWA will always get you there on time. We're flying TWA because if there's one thing I insist upon, it's to arrive on time."

The Jetstreams arrived at the air terminal two hours ahead of time.

"I know this is a little inconvenient," Jetstream said to his wife, "but by arriving at the air terminal two hours ahead of schedule we get first choice of the best seats." He then proceeds to instruct the TWA clerk to give them two seats at the very back of coach section, at the far end of the No Smoking area.

"This way we get seats with no one seated behind us," Jetstream advises his wife. "You'll find that much more comfortable."

"But why are we taking a three - across section, when there are only two of us?" Mrs. Jetstream asks, stupidly.

"Because," Jetstream says in a low whisper, "these big jets are never filled on the cross - country trips. We'll wind up with three seats for just the two of us. That's first class comfort at coach class rates. Trust me!"

Mrs. Jetstream was impressed with her husband's knowledge of jet travel. She was also impressed with the strong odor that greeted them as soon as they were seated aboard the plane.

"That's just the smell of the jets warming up," Jetstream assured her .

"No it isn't," the friendly stewardess advised them. "You're sitting very close to the toilets and they have been giving us quite a bit of trouble lately. But the captain has assured me they will be repaired before we take off."

Just then the jets roar into full throttle and the big plane starts rolling toward takeoff.

"I guess there wasn't time for the toilets," the friendly stewardess says, with a slight smile.

To get their minds off the toilet odors, Friendly Stewardess promptly hits the Jetstreams with the TWA East - Bound Menu.

"You can have your choice of Steak Supreme with mushrooms, Chicken Delight with Spanish Rice, or Mexican Meatballs with Chili Sauce," Friendly Stewardess announces.

"All of a sudden I've lost my appetite," Mrs. Jetstream says, holding her handkerchief to her nose.

"You have to eat," Mr. Jetstream insists. "It's part of the package."

"Yes," Friendly Stewardess agrees, "and you get three vegetables, a big salad, two dinner rolls and a cherry cobbler. It's all part of the East - Bound Menu."

Shortly thereafter, the two big trays of food arrive.

"Hurry up and eat," Jetstream advises his wife. "I happen to know that the movie in this section is 'PATTON' and I've already ordered two sets of earphones, at modest extra cost."

"I'm just not used to this much food," Mrs. Jetstream replies, "particularly without ever moving out of the chair, and it's hard to think of food with all those people trooping by us to go to the toilet."

"Don't be foolish," Jetstream notes, wolfing down the last of his Mexican Meatballs and then attacking his wife's untouched Cherry Cobbler, "just relax and watch the movie. Patton is one of the all - time great Americans."

But it turns out that 'Patton' was being shown in first class only. The TWA movie for coach class was 'I AM THE GREATEST', starring the heavyweight fighter by the same name.

Jetstream is about to complain to the stewardess, but just as he tries to get up, a very large, very black man moves in to occupy the empty third seat. "I've always wanted to see 'THE GREATEST' but our movie up there in first class is some dumb thing about a flag - waving general." The large black man then proceeds to light up a very large cigar.

So there they sit, the three of them, throughout the entire showing of THE GREATEST. Mrs. Jetstream can't decide whether to crawl over the gentleman with the cigar in order to reach the toilet, which still stinks, or whether she should just sit there and throw up in her sweater.

Mr. Jetstream would like to complain, about the movie, the cigar, or even the Mexican Meatballs, but he sizes up the large man in the third seat and decides to watch the movie.

Fortunately, TWA Flight 63 into Washington National Airport arrives on time, just as the commercial promised.

NOW vs. Fischer

To The Times —
Attention Al Fischer:

I realize the need to meet deadlines with a certain number of inches causes columnists to throw together some pretty strange material as if it were all interrelated. Such was the case in your column, "Focus/Nat'l IWY" of October 28.

I will begin by correcting our name: the National Organization FOR Women, not "of". Men do join NOW.

Those of us who hear of your column ... are aware of your biases. However, I find it incredible that you link the ERA with pornography, obscenity and homosexuality. I was also startled to read that your idea of a democratic society would not remedy discrimination against women and minorities. We apparently differ on our definitions of "democratic," "fascist," and "oppressive."

I can understand your opposition to "any action or movement that demeans or can lead to undermining of the family unit." I have been married for ten years, and I contend that the family's worst enemy is a society which fosters a subservient status of one of the marital partners and all female children. And I am not talking about who does the dishes. I am talking about equal treatment under the law, because that is what the ERA is about. . .

As the IWY Conference approaches, I confess to feeling sad that such a momentous event could become a struggle when it might have been a powerful example of women working together. Some will profit from a clash in Houston, but not women.

I, too, see a "groundswell building within this country," Mr. Fischer: one that will not accept injustice. Half the human race is female, and we will not be denied.

Dr. Joyce Brothers

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I've been living with a man for a year and he has a habit that makes me wonder whether we should marry. The question sits heavily upon us right now because I'm pregnant and we don't want to raise the child without marriage because of our religious views. When anything goes wrong, and that means if he doesn't get his way, he starts throwing blame around, usually smack on my shoulders. But, it's always someone else's fault. He blames his parents and all the women in his life for most of the bad things that have happened to him. I'm really torn up because of this. I'm afraid it's an ancient habit that isn't going to clear up on its own. — V.A.

DEAR V.A.: I don't think it's wise to marry until your problem has been overcome. You're quite correct in assuming it won't go away. Even though you've been living together, there's no doubt that marriage will bring new problems and new tensions, especially if you're going to have a child.

I also think it's unfair to your child and to your marriage to make your relationship legal now only because of your pregnancy. An existing problem is likely to guarantee failure. I urge you to think a long time before you take this step. This is reminiscent of the old shot-gun marriages of the past. The victim of this kind of forced union usually the child who suffers from all of the unresolved problems of his parents.

When a person constantly blames others for his own shortcomings, he's demonstrating that he's unwilling or unable to assume any responsibility for his own life. The person who blames others is disappointed that his expectations are not met, he feels angry and resentful and looks for a scapegoat. Don't be it and don't put your child in that position either.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: My father is in his early 80s and since my mother's death, he's treated me like his wife or his mother. I am divorced so I have to work to support my children. Do I have to meet his demands too as if he were my child, or worse, a totally dependent husband? It's bad enough that it drove me crazy when my mother waited on him hand and foot. He's always expected women to run when he called. He has plenty of money but he contributes nothing to anyone but himself. I don't want to hurt him but he doesn't own me. I feel trapped. C.K.

DEAR C.K.: Kick the habit now and don't allow yourself to be trapped. Try being honest with your father. Simply tell him that while you love him, you already feel burdened because of the responsibilities to your children and job. Let him know that you want to see him at certain times but that you also need some freedom in order to get some enjoyment out of your own life.

Since he has money, and, I gather, reasonable health, you might suggest that he'd increase his own enjoyment if he settled in an area that caters especially to relatively healthy older persons. There are places that offer entertainment, good exercise and lots of companionship.

Dr. Alvin Goldfarb, an expert in the field of geriatrics, says that one common aspect of aging is the way an old person will make a parent substitute out of his own mate or child. This dependency problem isn't really a quirk of old a8The average adult is just as dependent emotionally but hides it better.

"Will you buy me a bottle of boat, Mommy?"

SIDE GLANCES by Gill Fox

"Why is it that meditating keeps her calm and serene, except when we remind her to clean her room."

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB–My friend and I have recently joined a club to lose weight–a lot of weight, and we are supposed to count our calories and keep a record of all foods we eat.

How much do you count for fats in a meal? I cut all fats, trim my meats, and stopped using butter, Crisco and margarine, along with cutting out my sugar and sweets. My friend contends that sweets are enough to omit, that the fats don't make that much difference.

She and her family live on hamburgers and french fries, fried chicken, pizza with sausage and that type of food. They all have upset stomachs and diarrhea and all are overweight and nervous. Will you comment please?

DEAR READER--The facts are that there are nine calories in one gram of fat, and about four calories in a gram of carbohydrates or protein. Even worse, fat tissue contains less water than muscle (lean) or the bulky vegetables and fruits. The water content affects the calorie count also.

Sugar contains a lot of calories because it contains almost no water. It is dehydrated and refined beet or cane juice. Usually the best place to cut calories from a diet is to eliminate all the fat that you can and eliminate the concentrated sweets such as sugar, candies, syrups, jellies and the like.

There will be some fat in almost all foods. Even fresh fruit contains a small amount of fat. There is fat in corn--hence corn oil--and some in most vegetables. But these amounts of fat are small compared to the amounts found in high fat foods, such as untrimmed pork chops, cold cuts, processed or cured cheese and the like.

To diet properly you really need to have an idea of the actual calorie count of various foods you eat, whether the calories are from starches, sweets, fat, or protein.

DEAR DR. LAMB–I have been taking vitamins A, B, C and D for a year now. A nurse told me if I took vitamin E I would not need A, B, C and D. My doctor says take a multiple vitamin mixture which includes A, B, C and D. What do you recommend?

DEAR READER–I recommend following the advice you paid your doctor for.

You have either misquoted the nurse or she knows almost nothing about nutrition. Vitamin E has none of the important functions of A, B, C and D. Vitamins have different purposes in the metabolic system. If you don't get enough vitamin C you get scurvy. If you were seriously deficient in D you would get rickets. Vitamin E doesn't prevent either. In fact, vitamin E is a vitamin in search of a disease. There is no known human disease caused by a lack of vitamin E.

I think people should try to get all their vitamins and minerals from a well-balanced diet. But for those who do not eat properly for one reason or another, or have an increased need for vitamins, then an inexpensive all-purpose vitamin capsule that contains the Recommended Daily Dietary Allowance values is the best solution.

I'm de "Yellow Kid" 1896

Each day millions of readers all over the world spend a few minutes reading their favorite comics, or "funnies," in the daily newspaper. Comic strips are a series of drawings that tell a funny, exciting, or dramatic story.

Comic strips first appeared more than 80 years ago.

The first widely known comic strip was "Hogan's Alley," by Richard F. Outcault. It was a full-page drawing, and its hero was known as "the Yellow Kid," so-named because the character was dressed in a yellow nightshirt, about 1896.

Outcault used the yellow shirt as a space to print messages, jokes, and slogans. Comic strips were soon being used by newspapers all over the country.

Other early comic strips included such favorites as the "Katzenmammer Kids" (1897), by Rudolph Dirk, Bud Fisher's "Mutt and Jeff" (1907), and "Bringing Up Father" (1913), by George McManus.

Nov. 4, 1977

You are going to resurrect something this coming year that was set aside in the past. Another may have started the project, but the control will pass into your hands.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) It isn't that you couldn't make it on you own today, but you have others shouldering the wheel in your behalf. Take advantage. Aim for higher goals.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Adopt a strong, positive attitude today. If you do make mistakes they'll only be minor, and you shouldn't let them faze you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Perhaps you can cut yourself into something with another today that could be beneficial for both of you. All you need to do is to give it your best.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Equality is your byword today. You treat all fairly and without deference to their station in life.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Things that seem outmoded to others today offer a challenge to you. You can transform them into useful objects.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) A fun day for you, and one that has very romantic overtones. You should try to share it with someone you're intensely fond of.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Concentrate on any inclinations you have today to beautify the place you call home. The results will be extra pleasing and long-lasting.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You have a way with words today. Communicate, either verbally or on paper, with those you want to impress.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Material prospects are very encouraging for you today. With your tenacity you may even be able to coax another race out of a supposedly dead horse.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Telling or selling are your strong points today. You have a magnetic charm that will enable you to do no wrong in the eyes of others.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) An involvement with another could bring you financial rewards today. The windfall comes from efforts of the other party more than you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You can be a powerful force for good by working with a group with widespread connections, or with persons of great influence. Benefits accrue through those you touch.

Opening lead — Ace♠

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Here is a hand from the finals of the 1931 Vanderbilt. Howard Schenken, one of the great players and the only one of the four at the table who is still alive sat South.

Hal Sims was West, Sherman Stearns, North, and William Karn, East.

Hal elected to open a semi-psychic one spade and remained silent from then on, but Willard Karn elected to sacrifice at four spades. But Howard wasn't going to give up and went to five hearts.

He ruffed the ace of spades lead and after long thought came to the conclusion that Karn would have a singleton high heart and most of the missing high-card strength. In other words, he read Sims for having just about what he did hold.

After that it became a simple matter to find the winning line of play. Howard led a low heart! Willard won with his singleton king and promptly led a small diamond. Any other lead would have given Howard no problem. Neither did this one. Howard was so sure of the location of the diamond king that he let it ride around to dummy's queen and made his five-heart contract.

She wants basics back in school

Second bid for SRV school board

Joan Scott

Joan Scott, a consultant for management personnel, is making her second bid for a position on the San Ramon Valley Unified School District board.

A resident of Danville the past six years, Mrs. Scott finished in the middle of the field of 12 aspirants in the school board election held last March.

The special election Tuesday finds Mrs. Scott and three others seeking the chair formerly occupied by Ronald Harris. The other contenders are Don Smith, Karen Stepper and Michael Wahlig.

A graduate of Ohio University with a BA in commerce, Mrs. Scott spent more than 20 years as a company controller, research analyst and in personnel work with Bay Area firms.

She lists herself on the ballot as a corporate planning adviser and does the consultant-type work on a part-time basis.

She and her husband have children attending Baldwin, San Ramon High and Monte Vista High.

Mrs. Scott supports the year-round schools pilot project and adds, "I personally would like to see all four schools recommended for the project be funded, if the district has the money."

But she cuations that the district should wait and see what the Stanford Research Institute cost model comes up with before proceeding any farther with precise plans.

On the question of curriculum, Mrs. Scott believes more emphasis should be put into drilling on basics. An avowed opponent of what she calls the "goody" courses, she believes many students have suffered because of the number of special or elective courses.

"I think our standards have dropped way down. In an attempt to give our children a broad, well-rounded education, we've 'broadened and well-rounded' too far."

Mrs. Scott feels, in regard to negotiations on a contract, that she "would be on the side that says 'look, can't we amend the code or rules so that we can become more involved (as trustees) in negotiations. Negotiations should be solely with the children and school program as benefactors," comments Mrs. Scott.

She believes another attempt in the near future to pass a bond issue would be "futile." "I don't think the people would go for it."

On budgeting, Mrs. Scott says the board must look at what can be eliminated— "such as the frill courses and teachers of same."

She doesn't believe that double sessions are necessary.

On communications, Mrs. Scott opines that the major problem may be a "problem" in the link between the board and developers.

Schools question their legal counsel

PLEASANTON— Pleasanton School District trustees are taking a look at options to legal counsel and if the district is getting the most for its money for said services.

The subject was discussed briefly at Wednesday night's school board meeting, and will probably be a discussion item at a future Amador Valley Joint High School District board meeting.

Both districts have employed legal counsel, through the firm of Breon, Galgani and Godino, for the past couple of years with much of the counsel directed to negotiations with teacher units on contracts.

Jim Pinnell of the San Francisco-based firm has been assigned to the Amador and Pleasanton districts this year.

The board, which just appointed Raymond Goluba to bring the panel to full strength, also adopted guidelines for implementation of Assembly Bill 65, voted against supporting an initiative that would, if placed on the ballot, restrict union organiziing among public employee groups, held a discussion on alleged confusions in Brown Act terminology, and adopted a resolution implementing a master plan by the county consortium on special education.

Trustees also heard a detailed report from Buzz Valente and Charles Tankersley on the family life and sex education unit for fifth graders at Fairlands School.

Valente said that "basically, a biologial approach is taken to instruction in the unit."

Tankersley reviewed movie and written materials used in sex education instruction.

He noted, though, that "If a question comes up that involves morality or values, we try to refer it to the child's parents." Both noted that a lot of time is spent in correcting misconceptions.

At the conclusion of the presentation, Valente made a plea for guidelines in that subject area.

Principal Gene Vargas said a key to the success of the unit is "the 25 hours of in-service training."

Rate change on garbage proposed

PLEASANTON — Non residents may end up paying more if they want to dump their debris at the city's garbage transfer station, according to a staff recommendation to city council members.

The council is expected to vote Tuesday on the Pleasanton Garbage Service proposal to hike rates for persons outside city limits to $2.25 per cubic yard and $11 per ton. That is 65 cents and $2, respectively, more than city dwellers would be sasked to pay.

Pleasanton Garbage Service also wants the council to approve a discount rate of $3.50 a month for senior citizens using one garbage can. That is 42 cents less each month than other residents can expect to pay if the proposed rates are approved by the council.

Water: How much we use and why

WASHINGTON — You probably didn't notice it, but you used about 172 gallons of water around your home yesterday. And you'll do it again today.

The U.S. Geological Survey also reports that the average use of water from public supplies is continuing to increase.

Almost all of this water is used by individuals for home use although usage by some industries and commercial establishments is included in the category.

In 1970, the Survey reported, the use of water from public supplies amounted to 166 gallons per person. In 1975, the figure had grown to 168 gallons per person. Since then, water usage has gone up about two percent per year, the Survey estimates.

So where did all the water go?

For starters, a bath would have consumed 30 to 40 gallons while a shower would have taken 20 to 30 gallons. Every flush of the toilet consumes four to six gallons and it takes 20 to 30 gallons to do a load of laundry. Washing dishes takes eight to 10 gallons of water while a leaky faucet can waste 10 gallons an hour.

Running tap water for the garbage disposal or to get it hot or while shaving uses about two gallons of water per minute.

And then there's water for the lawn or garden — lots of water in some parts of the nation and in some months of the year.

Actually, the home use category is only a small part of the nation's overall water use.

Overall use rose to 2,000 gallons per person this year, but was not growing as fast as in previous years, officials said.

The Survey assesses American water use every five years. The figures released Thursday showed average use of about 420 billion gallons of water a day, or 1,900 gallons per person, in 1975. This water was used for public supplies, commerce, industry, irrigation and rural water supplies. A regional breakdown of the water consumption report was not immediately available so the report did not assess the impact of the western drought on consumption there.

"Thed 420 billion gallons per day represents a 12 percent increase in off-channel water use since 1970 and about a 110 percent increase since we first started making estimates in 1950," said C. Richard Murray of the survey's national center in Reston, Va.

But, Murray added, "despite the doubling in watetr use in the last 25 years, the 1975 figures indicate a slowing down of the rate of increase."

Based on an annual increase of two percent, he estimated 1977 water use at 435 billion gallons per day, or 2,000 gallons per person.

Overall, Murray said, "the nation as a whole has ample supplies of water.

Doctors can detect crippler before birth

BOSTON — Doctors say they have found a way to determine before birth whether a baby will be crippled by a usually fatal, inherited form of muscular dystrophy.

The researchers said that with the results of their test, mothers may decide to have abortions rather than bear children afflicted with the illness.

Doctors say their method, a kind of prenatal blood test, can identify Duchenne's muscular dystrophy. This is a form of the disease that strikes only boys, but it is passed on to them by their mothers, who do not suffer its symptoms.

An account of the research, performed at Yale Medical School and other colleges, was published in Thursday's edition of the New England Journal of Medicine.

Health officials say 600-700 babies are born each year with Duchenne's muscular dystrophy. This accounts for 20-50 percent of all cases of muscular dystrophy.

Children born with Duchenne's disease usually die in their late teens or early 20s.

The doctors found that blood from fetuses that will develop muscular dystrophy contains unusually high levels of an enzyme called creatine phosphokinase.

Using a fine, lighted tube, doctors can draw a tiny amount of blood from the placenta that connects the fetus with its mother. Then they examine the blood to find the level of the telltale enzyme.

In recent years, women who are suspected carriers of Duchenne's muscular dystrophy have undergone amniocentesis, a sampling of the amniotic fluid which tells doctors the sex of the fetus.

Often, doctors say, the women will abort all male fetuses rather than risk having a diseased child. However, only about half of the male babies of these women actually have muscular dystrophy.

"What many families have elected to do is either have no children or have only girls," Maurice J. Mahoney, a Yale physician who worked on the research, said in an interview.

Mahoney said similar prenatal blood tests have been used to identify children with sickle-cell anemia and thalassemia, a disorder of the blood hemoglobin.

First school strike ever in Oakland

OAKLAND — The first teachers' strike in Oakland history began Thursday with $100- a-day substitutes working in partially filled classrooms while regular teachers picketed outside some 90 schools.

The Oakland Education Association estimated that "80-90 per cent" of its 3,200 members stayed away from their jobs.

A bargaining session was scheduled for late Thursday.

The 50,000-student Oakland Unified School District, California's sixth largest, had no accurate estimate of Thursday's attendance, but officials said it was lower than normal.

There were no reports of confrontations on the picket lines, which strike coordinator Louis Boitano said were set up at "almost all" of the schools.

Contract negotiations broke off Tuesday, and the faculty voted 1,160-780 to strike after a three-hour meeting Wednesday night.

Teachers are asking for a 15 per cent salary increase, a committment to more minority hiring and protection for their cars and personal property while they are in class.

District information officer Marjorie Henders said the district has offered a 6 per cent increase in salaries and a 2.4 per cent increase in fringe benefits and increments.

She said the current average earning of an Oakland teacher, including both salary and benefits, is $19,500.

"Our total offer would cost about $5.2 million dollars. Granting the teachers' demands would cost about $8.5 million. So we're more than $3.3 million apart," Henders said.

In response to the demand for minority hiring, John Lievore, district director of staff development, said the district had offered an affirmative action plan which teachers rejected.

On the issue of protection for cars, Lievore said the district already provides off-the-street parking and insurance for vandalism.

Several community groups support the district's decision to keep schools open during the strike with substitutes. Alphonso Galloway of the NAACP said closure would harm Oakland's minority students and "the educationally deprived community would lose out."

Plane landings and takeoffs make Buchanan the 17th busiest airport in the country.

Buchanan Field flying high with lots of county business

By PAT KEEBLE
Lesher News Bureau

CONCORD — Aircraft at Buchanan Field serve businesses with payrolls totalling nearly $50 million, a new economic survey shows.

The survdy taken by the Mt. Diablo Chapter of the Ninety - Nines, Inc., the international women pilots group, said 78 of the 455 aircraft based at the county airport here last year were registered to businesses employing 4,284 people in the county.

Employment at the airport totals 264 people, including 140 at the Sheraton Inn, the report said. The airport payroll last year amounted to $2.2 million, with $900,000 attributed to the motel.

The Ninety - Nines' report was presented during a reception sponsored by the women pilots and the Fixed Base Operators Association, which represents aviation businesses.

The Ninety - Nines undertook the survey after the Board of Supervisors declined to include it in the aviation master plan being studied.

It is part of an effort by aviation groups to educate the public on the value of having Buchanan Field in the area. The airport is ranked the 17th busiest in the nation in terms of aircraft take - offs and landings.

Airport manager Ralph Bradley said in the last 10 months the number of planes based at the field has risen to 500.

Of the aviation - related employees at the field, 94 work for the fixed base operators and their flight schools, aircraft sales and service outlets and other aviation businesses.

Another six are employed by the county to administer and maintain the field, 22 work in the Federal Aviation Administration Control Tower and two work for STOL Airline, which takes passengers to and from San Francisco International Airport.

Pf the businesses responding, 15 are headquartered in Concord, 13 in Walnut Creek, four in Orinda and the rest primarily scattered in Contra Costa County, but including two in San Francisco and one each in Bakersfield, Berkeley, San Leandro, San Mateo and Oregon.

Twenty were catergorized as manufacturing companies, 14 as realty and investment firms, seven in construction, five in restaurant chains, and the rest scattered through a wide variety of businessis and industries.

Of the 64 companies responding, 45 said their businesses would be "inconvenienced" if it were not for the airport, while 23 said business would be "uneconomical" without the airport.

The assessed value of all aircraft based at Buchanan was $8.3 million, assessed value being 1.5 percent of market value.

VCSD, PG&E on energy

DUBLIN — The Valley Community Services District (VCSD) and Pacific Gas and Electric (PG&E) are presenting the second of three consumer education programs related to energy Nov. 7.

These free-of-charge sessions are conducted at Shannon Community Center, 11600 Shannon Ave., Dublin. PG&E Home Economist Jan Posey gives the presentations.

The general public is invited.

Monday's session is called "The Energy Spenders." This program explains the national energy picture and why conservation is important. Ways to conserve energy will be shown.

Full color slides are used for illustration.

Another program is scheduled for Dec. 5. This "Light it Right" session will show how to achieve energy-saving lighting in the home. Emphasis will be on using fluorescent lighting to save money and energy.

Hasseltine supports SRV flood basin plan

DANVILLE — The newly selected flood control basin plan affecting San Ramon Valley is the "best by far," according to Eric Hasseltine, Contra Costa County's fifth district supervisor.

During Hasseltine's monthly liaison session yesterday at the Danville Hotel Restaurant and Saloon, he said the plan would be less expensive for the county to construct.

He added the community would reap more benefits from the plan since the ground above the retention ponds could be used for parks and recreation.

"This dual role is a definite asset," Hasseltine said. "The retention pond concept is better as opposed to changing creeks and channels."

The flood control staff selected four sites for the retention ponds.

The 25-acre east branch site is near Blackhawk. The recreational area on top of the basin will be primarily playing fields, Hasseltine pointed out.

Site two is at the Greenbrook/Danville junction. Besides park and recreational facilities, a portion of the land has been set aside for a future elementary school.

The other two locations are the intersection of Diablo Road and Green Valley Road plus property near the Bryan Ranch.

"It is unfortunate some property had to be taken over preventing landowners from using the land for their own purposes," Hasseltine admitted.

He pointed out that property owners were eligible for compensation. If they refused to negotiate, the court could wind up setting the price, Hasseltine explained.

A new Senate bill (SB-201) could affect overcrowding of schools in San Ramon Valley, Hasseltine said. The bill is effective Jan. 1, 1978.

The gist of the bill is if a school district notifies the county and/or city that overcrowding is taking place, the county and/or city cannot approve any new major or minor subdivisions unless the county or city has an ordinance to get money or land from the developer to lessen school impact.

"Financial arrangements must be worked out between school districts, county or city and the developer," Hasseltine said.

He reported representatives from the Contra Costa County Planning Commission plus from other local government agencies had formed a committee to develop an expanded ordinance.

"The new ordinance will supercede San Ramon Valley Developer's Policy," he added.

Hasseltine reminded the audience of 50 to be sure and vote next Tuesday for the San Ramon Valley School District board of trustees.

Eucharist in the bank

OAKLAND — Communion in the hand will be introduced in the Catholic Diocese of Oakland on Nov. 20, the feast of Christ the King.

Preparation is considered important because the major change in the liturgy is made "to deepen reverence and devotion of the Eucharist," according to a news release from diocese headquarters.

Workshops will take place for lay ministers on Monday, Nov. 7 at St. John the Baptist, Tuesday, Nov. 8 at St. John Vianney, Walnut Creek, Thursday, Nov. 10 at St. Jarlath, Oakland, and Monday, Nov. 14 at All Saints, Hayward.

Sessions for teachers and catechists will give guidelines on helping their students understand the reception of Eucharist in the hand, theology of the Eucharist, visual presentation, and lesson plans for teaching.

The three afternoon sessions from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. will be on Monday, Nov. 14 at St. Jerome, El Cerrito, Wednesday, Nov. 16 at Queen of All Saints, Concord, and Thursday, Nov. 17, at St. John, San Lorenzo.

AV, 'Pokes tie for c-c crown

Wolf trio impressive

LAFAYETTE — Livermore used quality and Amador Valley used its depth as both teams tied for the varsity boys championship at the East Bay Athletic League cross-country championships at Lafayette Reservoir here yesterday.

Both teams had 56 points. However, Livermore had the first and third place finishers in Rob Wentworth (first in 14:17) and Steve Lloyd (third in 14:45). The Dons' top runners were Greg Novacek, sixth in 15:10, and Curtis Smith, seventh in 15:11. But the rest of the Don runners picked up the slack.

Granada won the girls' varsity championship with 32½ points way after the first 220 yards and topped second-place finisher Mark Baker of San Ramon by 20 seconds.

It was sweet revenge for the Cowboy junior who took second to Baker last season.

"Yea, I guess I was sort of looking forward to beating him," smiled a tired Wentworth. "I've been looking forward to beating him all season. I beat him in the dual meet last week."

Wentworth said he was tired after the race because he started out too quickly.

"Usually, I try to start out at an even pace and then pick up the pace as I go along," he remarked. "But today I didn't and I began to feel it.

"Actually the race wasn't that hard. It was windy but the hills went up and down and that sort of balanced it out.

What about his goals for the season?

"I'd like to get down to about 14:10 possibly," he said after hearing about his time. "But it's hard to tell how much I can improve by the section meet."

San Ramon had three runners in the top five but their fourth and fifth runners finished well out of the running to dash the Wolves' hopes. Besides Baker San Ramon had had Jim Anklam in fourth at 14:48 and Brett Baffert fifth in 14:55.

The girls' varsity individual competition was the most exciting race of the day.

Wendy Behrbaum of Amador Valley and Granada's Arlene Daley tied for first after the Don runner put on a strong finishing kick. Both athletes were clocked in 11:38 for the two-mile course. Julie Hayes of Dublin, expected to challenge both for the top spot, finished third in 11:53. Diana Bateman of San Ramon was fourth in 12:09.

Both Daley and Behrbaum admitted the weather affected their running.

"It was really windy out there," Behrbaum stated. "It was particuarly bad going up those hills. We figured it would be between us and Julie for the title but we thought it would be closer."

Bill Languemi of Amador Valley won the boys' frosh-soph race in 10:25, holding off Dublin's Daryl Williams 50 yards from the finish. Williams finished in 10:30.

Amado Valley won the frosh-soph boys' team title with 27 points to 39 for Granada. San Ramon was third with 87 points and Foothill fourth with 101.

Jeff Gilbert led the Granada frosh-soph effort with a 10:51 clocking for third place.

San Ramon won the girls' frosoph team title with 15 points as it had the only complete team entered. The Wolves' top runner was Nina McCallson who was seventh in 14:41. Evelyn Knowles of Dublin was first in 12:51 ubland Patti Gray of Foothill second in 13:00.

Amador Valley won the junior varsity boys title with 38 points to 43 for Livermore and 59 for San Ramon.

Bill Scofield of Granada won the individual race in 10:55 and John Horton of Amador Valley took second in 11:01.

Only the top finishers from the boys and girls' varsity races advance to the North Coast Section 3-A Central meet Saturday, November 12 here.

The top seven individuals and top four complete teams in both divisions advance to the North Coast Section 3-A Central meet Saturday, November 12 here.

White loves track heroes

BERKELEY — Coach Mike White of California has great respect for trackmen in football uniforms, and has warned his Bears all about Washington split end Spider Gaines.

"James Lofton of Stanford is probably the best receiver in the Pacific-8, but Gaines is certainly a close second," White says.

Gaines, from Berkeley's neighboring city of Richmond, has caught 21 passes for 505 yards this season, an average of 24 yards per reception. Like Lofton he's a world class track athlete.

Cal and Washington's Huskies both figure in the Rose Bowl race going into Saturday's game which is expected to draw more than 40,000 fans. The Bears are 2-2 after beating conference favorite Southern California last week, while Washington is 3-1.

"We're in bad shape, down mentally and emotionally," Huskies coach Don James said after his team's first Pac-8 loss, 20-12 to UCLA. But he thanked Cal for its upset of USC, saying, "at least it keeps us around for another week."

If the Huskies, whose defense has allowed just 14.8 points per game, can beat high - scoring Cal (27.3 per game), they'll be at least even with USC when the two teams meet next Saturday in Seattle.

Cards next Troy spoiler?, pg. 14

Cal's defense is close to Washington statistically, allowing 15.5 points per game and 278 yards compared to the Huskies' average of 277 yards allowed. Linebacker Michael Jackson, credited with 158 tackles, is the leader of the Washington unit.

The Bears did a good job against USC's passing attack last week, with Anthony Green's two interceptions earning the safety Pac-8 defensive honors of the week. Others guarding against Warren Moon's passes to Gaines and others will be Green's secondary teammates Ken McAlister, Anthony Washington and Daryl Swanson.

Cal quarterback Charles Young had limited success passing against USC, but one second half apparent touchdown pass was dropped by freshman flanker Floyd Eddings.

"We would have been ahead 24-7 and they would have collapsed," Young noted after the game which ended 17-14. The Bears rushed for 107 yards in the second half.

Fullback Paul Jones of Cal has 747 yards on the ground this year, with a good shot at becoming the school's fourth 1,000 - rusher amd joining All - Americans Johnny Olszewski, Jackie Jensen and Chuck Muncie.

Down to the wire

Arlene Daley apprehensively checks the position of her closest competitor, Wendy Behrbaum of Amador Valley, down the stretch in yesterday's East Bay Athletic League cross-country championships at Lafayette Reservoir. Though the Granada runner appears to have the lead in the upper shot, the pair got together both at and after the finish as they tied for the girls championship.

Bowl tourney draws 4000

The 13th annual Livermore Valley Bowling Tournament will open its 7th weekend run at the Granada Bowl in Livermore tomorrow.

Sponsored by Caratti Jewelers of Livermore and Pleasanton, the doubles and singles events are destined to break all previous records. Livermore will have over 4,000 bowlers entered this year. A record $15,000 in prize money is being offered.

Opening ceremonies will be held prior to the 3 p.m. squad on Saturday with top bowling officials present along with tournament sponsor Rich Caratti.

The first weekend features many of the local keglers in both the team events on Saturday and the Doubles and Singles Events on Sunday.

Houston wins, 113-111

Warriors blow lead

HOUSTON — Several missed lay-ups prevented the Golden State Warriors from maintaining a brief overtime lead and negated an overpowering fourth quarter rally as the Houston Rockets took a 113-111 National Basketball Association victory last night at the Summit.

The Warriors trailed by 12, 96-84, with 5:48 to play in regulation, but took off on a 21-9 binge that tied the game at 105 with :57 seconds to play in the game. Rick Barry was fouled before Clifford Ray could get off an in-bounds pass and Barry hit a pair of free throws to knot it.

When the Rockets took the ball to the other end, E.C. Coleman, a former Rocket, tied up red-hot Houston guard Mike Newlin. Coleman won the jump, tapping the ball to Dudley, but Barry missed a jumper with :28 showing and Houston got the ball back with all but a few of the 10,061 fans in the building going beserk.

Golden State grabbed the lead for the first time since the second quarter after the first 1:05 of the extra period went scoreless. Smith scored the hoop, taking a pass from Barry and flipping an agonizing six-footer over the front rim.

That was the last Golden State would see of the lead as Houston scored the next six points.

And, when Moses Malone scored from underneath with :45 seconds left, the Warriors appeared to be through. The impression was reinforced 18 ticks later when Smith, who finished with 25 points, missed a right-hand lay-up from the left side of the hoop, prompting another Houston timeout. Both center Clifford Ray and Dudley had earlier missed gimme shots in overtime.

Houston never got off what could have been a death-dealing shot as Rudy Tomjanavich was is possession of the ball when time ran out on the 24-second clock.

Newlin, who took 32 shots in the game and keyed the Rocket attack, cooled off in the overtime and nearly became the goat, fouling Smith on the ensuing play to permit the Warriors to draw to within a hoop at 113-111, the eventual final.

Houston called the inevitable time out and Newlin, trying to break out on the inbound pass, dropped the ball back out of bounds and the Warriors had five seconds to force another overtime.

It was not to be. Houston inserted all three of its big men — Kevin Kunnert, Dwight Jones and Malone — to pressure Golden State and Barry missed from the left corner as time ran out.

Nonetheless, Rick finished with 34 points and 13 assists, a seasonal high, to dominate the Warrior offense.

Newlin, who scored 20 of his points in the second half, had 26, despite being blanked in overtime. John Lucas, the ex-Golden Gater tennis player, canned 24 and Malone scored 17 points and grabbed 19 rebounds.

The Warriors are in New Orleans tonight for a 5:30 (PST, KNBR-680, KTVU, ch. 2) contest with the Jazz, at the Superdome. The Jazz rejected the thought of taking Wesley Cox from Golden State in compensation for Coleman and selected the other option given them by NBA commissioner Larry O'Brien, next year's first round Warrior draftpick and $75,000 Wednesday.

Local players do it for Cal

On Sports

For those who weren't aware of it, there is another college soccer team in the Bay Area besides USF that's beginning to make waves.

That team is the University of California at Berkeley.

And the Bears are having success largely because of a former Dublin High School athlete, Matt Bryant.

Manzar Iqbal

Bryant, a sophomore, came off the bench to score the winning goal as the Bears topped San Jose State 2-1 last week.

"He's played both striker and wing for us," said California coach Bob DiGrazia. "Matt's a good shooter and does everything well."

Even through Bryant doesn't start DiGrazia thinks he's one of the best two players on the California team.

"He's improved a lot and should do a lot to help our program."

There are some more East Bay Athletic League players on the California junior varsity squad, including former Granada stars Keith Teel and Manzar Iqbal. Granada head soccer coach Bill Coupe is the jv mentor.

Teel and Iqbal teamed up to score one of the Matador goals in Granada's 2-1 victory over Amador Valley for the EBAL championship last season.

The ex-EBAL stars are just a part of an improved program at California.

The Bears are 10-4-3 on the season and compete in the Pacific Soccer Conference North, which includes two-time defending NCAA champion USF and most of the other major Bay Area schools.

"We're getting there," DiGrazia commented about his team. "We have roughly the same amount of talent in our starting line-up as the Dons do but we don't quite have the depth or experience they have yet."

DiGrazia doesn't feel there are any pushovers in the PSCN.

"Santa Clara is tough and Stanford is coming along too," he said. "We're gradually closing the gap between USF and the rest of the conference teams."

The Southern California major schools are in the Pacific Soccer Conference South, which includes UCLA, probably the best team in that loop.

Probably the main reason USF has been far ahead of the other Bay Area teams (and most American squads in general) is the large number of foreign players on the Don squad.

Since soccer has been a big sport in most of the other countries in the world for years athletes who come here from abroad have a great advantage as far as experience and knowledge of the game goes.

Only recently have American players been exposed to soccer, and, as a result, it shows on the scoreboard.

However, as soccer becomes more popular in this country and youth programs keep expanding the difference will be eliminated.

Most of the Bears' players are from the Bay Area, where soccer has just begun to catch on. It's no concidence that EBAL players play a big part in the California program since the valley has been a hotbed of soccer compared to the rest of the state for several years.

That's why the EBAL has generally dominated non-league competition against other teams in past seasons. The youth programs here are among the best in the country and they should provide more first-grade athletes for the valley high schools, and eventually, the major colleges in the Bay Area.

And if past trends are any indication a lot of these EBAL players could be headed for California. Then USF domination of the collegiate soccer scene in the Bay Area and the country could be a thing of the past.

EBAL's 6th week

Can Dons break Mustangs?

Amador Valley High School's football team hopes to keep its slim East Bay Athletic League hopes alive when it travels to Danville to play league - leading Monte Vista tonight at 8 p.m.

The Dons are 3-2 in EBAL action and surprising Monte Vista is 4-0-1. In other games involving title contenders tonight, San Ramon (4-1) is at Granada (2-3) and Livermore (3-1-1) visits Foothill (0-5). Dublin (3-2) plays in San Ramon against California (0-5) at 1 p.m. tomorrow.

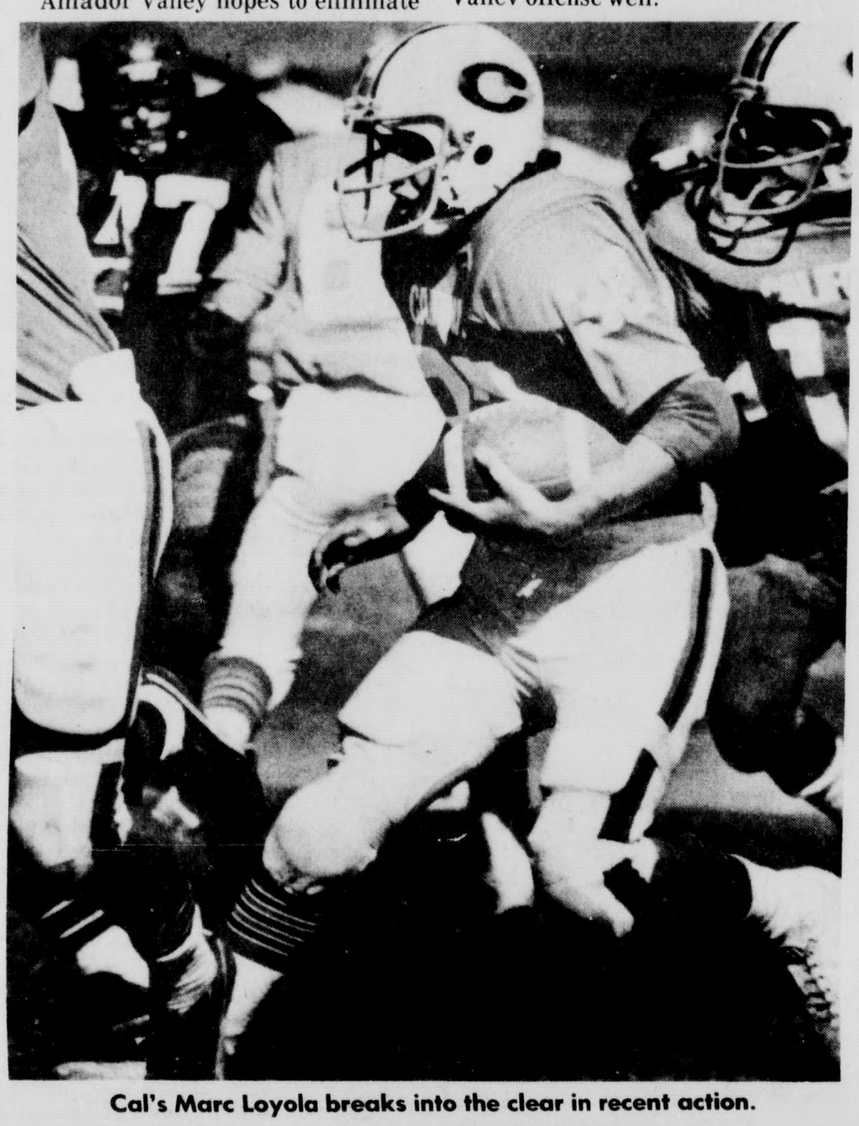
AMADOR VALLEY
MONTE VISTA

Amador Valley hopes to eliminate the mistakes and turnovers that have plagued it for several games.

"We've fumbled the ball three times in the end zone in the last four games," sighed Amador Valley head coach Duffy Dufour. "We've got to eliminate those kind of things and any other kind of mistakes if we hope to win the next two games."

Junior quarterback Tim Monday has done well replacing injured Pat Inglesby. Monday ran for 39 yards in 11 carries as the Dons topped California 13-7 last week.

He is also an adequate passer and runs the ground-oriented Amador Valley offense well.



Cal's Marc Loyola breaks into the clear in recent action.

Rob Flores leads the AV rushers with 293 yards in 59 carries for a 5.0 average. Mike Hoff has added 149 yards in 28 attempts and powerful Ernie Zumbach has gained 122 yards in 31 carries. Hoff has scored four touchdowns rushing.

Safety Ken Whitaker will miss the contest after an accident at home in which he injured his finger.

Dufour regards Monte Vista's ace quarterback Bart Adams as a double-threat. "He's a lot like Livermore's Naish Piazza," he said. "We'll probably have to defense him the same way. I think Piazza is a better runner and he killed us with his passing.

LIVERMORE
FOOTHILL

After its frustating tie with Monte Vista last week, Livermore needs a win over the young, but improving, Falcons to stay in the EBAL title race.

If Livermore beats Foothill and Granada and both San Ramon and Monte Vista lose one game the Cowboys could gain a share of the title or win it outright.

But the Cowboys aren't thinking that far ahead.

"We're just taking the games one at a time," said 'Poke head coach Ron Berg. "If we play good football and win the next two games we're hopeful someone else can help us along the way but right now we're thinking about Foothill."

Livermore will go with the same line-up it has used all season. Quarterback Naish Piazza is the key to the 'Pokes' veer offense. He can pass and run with equal efficency.

The Cowboys also have a corral of running backs to throw at the Falcons. Steve Martinez is ranked third in the EBAL with 346 yards yards in 72 attempts.

Despite the Cowboys' all-around strength Berg respects Foothill.

"They've been involved in a lot of close games," he said. "They've got some good running backs and can throw the ball well."

Doug Stevenson is the Foothill quarterback. He has completed 32 of 97 passes for 423 yards. Greg Costello leads an improved Falcon running game. He has rushed for 246 yards in 84 carries for two touchdowns.

SAN RAMON
GRANADA

The improved Matadors, one of the pre-season favorites to win the EBAL championship, get a chance to throw the EBAL race into turmoil with a win over San Ramon. After losingtheir first three contests, the Mats have come back with impressive wins over California and Foothill.

However, Granada may miss the services of star running back Dave Ridgewell for the contest. Ridgewell,who scored twice last week, injured an ankle in practice and is questionable for the Wolves.

It's fortunate for the Matadors that they have some good defensive backs as San Ramon has the EBAL's leading passer in Guy Houston. Houston has completed 52 of 90 passes for 684 yards and eight touchdowns. He has only been intercepted three times in league play despite passing the ball a great deal of the time.

DUBLIN
CALIFORNIA

Although Dublin saw its EBAL title chances receive a damaging blow last week in a 24-12 loss to San Ramon, the Gaels should be up for the winless Grizzlies.

"I really think this is developing into a key rivalry," commented Gael coach Wayne Re. "I was talking to Cal coach Mike McGinnis during the off-season and he thinks our rivalry can be bigger than Dublin-Amador Valley or California - Foothill."

Dublin will be missing the services of fullback Dennis King for the contest. His place will be taken by either Lyle Abreu, Lynn Beamon or Don Polaske.

Charlie Yamada, who caught two touchdown passes last week, is also doubtful for the contest.

Wide receiver Dan Pearson, the EBAL's league-leading receiver, is back at full strength after a charlie horse slowed him down last week. Pearson has caught 31 passes for 441 yards and four touchdowns. Junior quarterback Derrick Woolridge is ranked second in the league with 26 completions in 48 attempts for 429 yards. He has a 54.2 completion rate and has thrown three touchdowns.

Re thinks California will come out throwing.

"They have some fine receivers," he remarked. "Chuck Cary is a fine one and he has plenty of speed."

Cary has caught 13 passes for 171 yards and one touchdown and Dave Nielson has grabbed 13 passes for 212 yards.

Stanford harbors few illusions

SAN FRANCISCO — The Stanford Cardinals' first - place standing in the wild Pacific-8 football race hasn't changed coach Bill Walsh's attitude.

"We're still not thinking about being a bowl team. To be honest, you're not a bowl team until someone invites you," Waksh told football writers Monday.

Yes, the Cards stand 4-1 in the conference race for the Rose Bowl bid and have a potent offense, Walsh acknowledged, but when asked to comment on statistics ranking Stanford's defense seventh in the Pac-8 against rushifg, the coach said. "I think the statistics speak for themselves."

Walsh has taken a soft - sell approach since taking the Stanford coahing job early this year. The team has several freshman starters, hasn't had an easy victory yet and, in Walsh's words, "we're no juggernaut."

Stanford will be in Los Angeles Saturday to face the Southern California Trojans, who stand 3-1 in the Pac-8 and have one of the strongest rushing offenses.

"They will make yards on anyone and score on anyone. We'll have to outscore them," said Walsh, whose own offense is run by college football's leading passer, Guy Benjamin.

Although USC has lost its last two games, to Notre Dame and California, Walsh sized up the Trojans as "still the No. 1 Rose Bowl contender... capable of beating anyone in the country by a big score."

Southern Cal's offense rolled up 433 yards but was limited to a pair of touchdowns at Berkeley Saturday and lost 17-14 to the Cal team which, at 2-2, still has an outside chance for the Rose Bowl.

"There were 76,000 fans there, and the best thing for us is that some of them will be coming back this week," said Coach Mike White, whose Bears are hoE AGAIN Saturday to play Washington, 3-1 in the conference. "There was a line at the ticket wondow a mile long this morning."

Among the players praised by White for their performances against USC was defensive end Ralph DeLoach, credited with blunting the performance of Trojan tight end William Gay.

For the first time, Cal flopped its defensive ends so that DeLoach, at 6-5 much bigger than teammate Don Alaman, would be head up on Gay on every down

"By the third or fourth quarter we knew how he was going to block," DeLoach said.

Rose race will thin tomorrow

Something has got to give in the Pacific-8 Conference this week.

Southern California is the only team with its destiny in its own hands, but five teams — California, Stanford, USC, UCLA and Washington — all have legitimate chances to win the Rose Bowl berth.

Stanford, currently on top of the Pac-8 standings with a 4-1 record, faces defending champ USC in Los Angeles. Cal (2-2) and Washington (3-1) meet in Berkeley in a must - win for both teams, while UCLA faces Oregon in Eugene.

Stanford can go to the Rose Bowl if it defeats USC and California and Washington loses one game.

USC can go simply by winning its last three games. However, a loss to Stanford will eliminate the Trojans from the race.

UCLA is in if it takes its last three contests, coupled with a Stanford los to USC or California.

Washington, if UCLA loses one of its games, will go by winning their last three contests.

Finally, California will go by winning their final three tilts and the race ends in a two - way tie with Stanford, USC or Washington. The Bears have the best non - conference record (4-0) among Pac-8 teams.

Feature fizzles

Billed as the feature fight, the main event on the Concord Pavilion's initial boxing card last night turned into a feature fizzle.

Richmond's Tommy Evans dazed Seattle's heavyweight Stan Johnson, then toyed with him before knocking him down for the fifth and final time in the fourth round of a scheduled 10-rounder.

The fight was the last on a card of four professional and one amateur bout before 1,788 fans.

Johnson, who weighed in at 177 pounds, was a last-minute substitute for Gary Ghan of Los Angeles. Ghan had been injured last week and forced to bow out.

Johnson did not take long to bow out and become Evans' 11th straight knockout victim.

Coming into the fight with a 1972 victory over highly-touted Ernie Shavers on his record, Johnson looked little like a fighter who had accomplished that feat.

Evans, 182 pounds at the fight's outset, toyed with But Evans managed to drill him later in the round to send him to his back for the second of five times.

Chabot: spoilers or, possibly, champs

HAYWARD — Chabot College can throw the Golden Gate Conference football race into a real scramble if it defeats San Jose City College Saturday night at 7:30 in San Jose.

Any one of five teams could win the GGC title. De Anza and Laney are currently tied for the lead with 4-2 records, followed by San Jose (3-1-1), San Mateo (3-2) and Chabot (3-2).

Both San Jose and Chabot are coming off victories last week. The Glads edged Foothill, 16-14, while San Jose defeated last-place West Valley, 24-7.

San Jose's stats — except for its won-loss record — are less than impressive. The Jaguars were eighth in team offense before a 450-yard performance against hapless West Valley, and are only fourth in team defense.

A major factor in San Jose's winning record so far has been quarterback Tom Sheppard. Sheppard makes it difficult for opposing teams to defense the Jaguars, as he can both run and throw effectively from San Jose's option offense.

San Jose has become more than a one-man offensive team since last week, as ex-defensive back Mark Rebboah responded to a switch to running back by gaining 153 yards. The Jaguars are defending GGC champions, but their inexperience defense could hurt them against Chabot. San Jose had only one returning starter from last year's team on defense.

De Anza's Mark Berch and Diablo Valley's Kelvin Wallis were named the GGC players-of-the-week. Berch, a 6-1, 210 pound offensive tackle filled in for an injured teammate and was an important factor in the Dons 36-24 win over CCSF.

Wallis, a former Las Lomas High star, intercepted two passes, returning one 23 yards for a touchdown, in the Vikings' 34-15 upset of Laney.

Besides the Chabot-San Jose contest, other GGC games Saturday include West Valley at CCSF and De Anza at San Mateo. In a Friday night game, Diablo Valley travels to Foothill.

A chicken-kick ploy

DENVER — The American Humane Association wants the attorney general of Iowa to prosecute a high school football coach who has admitted trying to inspire his players by having them kick a chicken.

The chicken was killed afterwards by one of the players.

The Denver - based Humane Association said in a letter sent Tuesday to Attorney General Richard C. Turner that the incident represented a clear violation of Iowa law.

Robert Timmerman, football coach at Hempstead High School in Dubuque, painted the chicken gold to represent the golden eagle mascot of an opposing team in an intercity game.

He then had members of his varisty football team kick the chicken after a practice session, the association said. One player killed it later by wringing its neck.

Timmerman aplogized after the incident was publicized.

The American Humane Association is the oldest and largest federation of humane societies in the country.

O.J.'s price too high for anyone

BUFFALO — Buffalo running back O.J. Simpson's dream of playing for the Los Angeles Rams will remain a dream, says Rams' owner Carroll Rosenbloom.

Simpson is set to undergo surgery for knee cartilage damage next week and will miss the remainder of the National Football League season.

Many of his friends and teammates have indicated that Simpson, unhappy with the reeling Bills, may retire unless he's traded to a contender near his Los Angeles home.

Rosenbloom, rebuffed when he tried to acquire Simpson before the 1976 season, said he doesn't feel like being frustrated again.

"There's about as much chance of that as there is of you and I flying to the moon without wings," Rosenbloom said Wednesday by telephone from Los Angeles.

"You can dismiss anything about his playing for the Rams. It's much ado about nothing," said Rosenbloom.

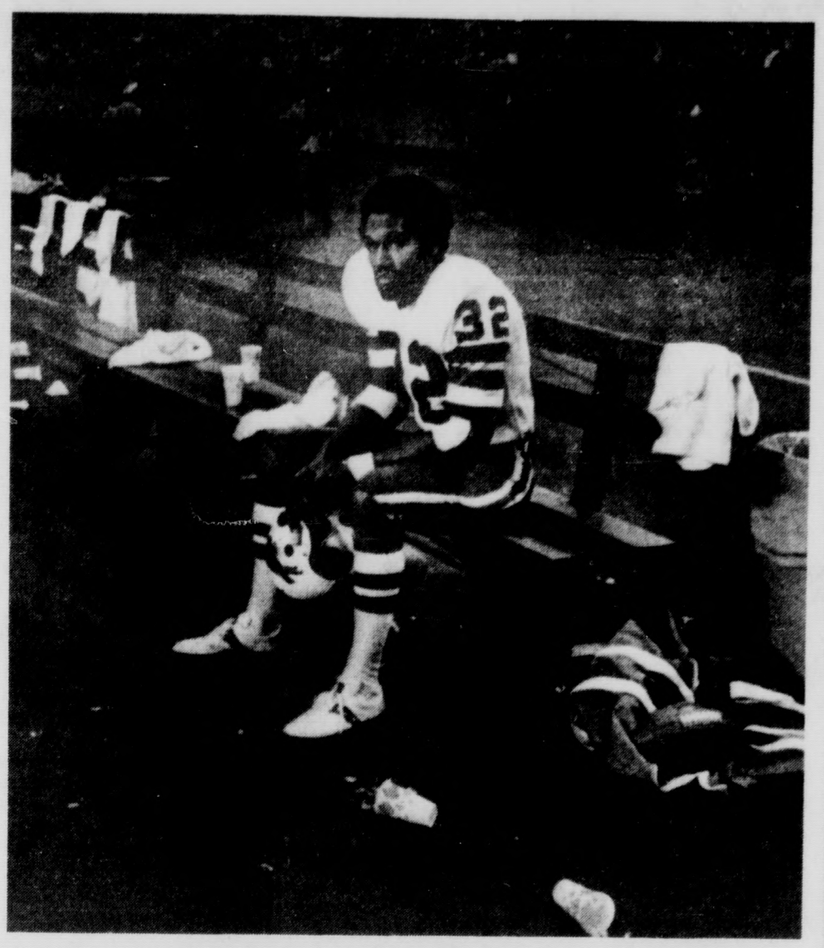
When Simpson asked for a trade two years ago, Bills' owner Ralph C. Wilson reportedly asked the Rams for a package that included running back Lawrence McCutcheon, linebacker Jack Youngblood, another front - line player and two top draft choices.

"If he were to go anyplace, I'm sure Mr. Wilson would ask a big price for him. The Rams aren't prepared to pay it," Rosenbloom said.

Wilson said, "There will be no trade to the Los Angeles Rams. We will never go through that again, and Juice knows that."

That leaves only .the Oakland Raiders, San Francisco 49ers and San Diego Chargers as possible teams that would keep O.J. close to home. Only the Raiders are a title - contending team at the moment, and their depth precludes another need for a running back. The 49ers and Chargers don't have the players or money to afford O.J., while the only other Pacific Coast team — Seattle's Seahwaks *re too far from home.

Simpson has repeatedly said he will discontinue his football career when his contract with the Bills, which runs through 1978, is performed.



O.J. sits in the Kingdome, site of what may have been his last game.

76ers can't do without bad press

PHILADELPHIA — Just six games into the National Basketball Association season, the rumblings that haunted the Philadelphia 76ers all last season have surfaced again.

The latest round of palace intrigue and soap opera entanglements was touched off when the 76ers dropped their third straight game Wednesday night, something they did not do until Portland whipped them in the last four games of the NBA title series.

One city newspaper has reported that coach Gene Shue's job is on the line. And owner Eugene Dixon, who shelled out a huge chunk of cash in order to guarantee a title, is biting his lip.

"I hope for a nice, smooth season with no controversy, but it's just not possible to keep every guy on our team happy," said guard Doug Collins.

"Hey, I don't envy Gene's job at all. Coaching this team borders on the impossible," he said.

Shue, who has three seasons left on a $150,000 a year contract, reports he was headed for the unemployment line because of his hassles with Dixon.

"That's all over. A newspaper wanted to write a story, but there's nothing," Shue said.

When two beat writers approached Dixon, the owner clammed up and ordered his assistant to show the writers out of his seating section. "Boot 'em out," Dixon said.

The reason for the unsettled climate is the play of the 76ers, who are 2-4 and performing poorly.

"We're just not playing smart in key situations," said forward George McGinnis.

"When we should be taking the ball inside, we're shooting jump shots. When we should be shooting, we're passing. When we should be passing, we're shooting," he said.

Julius Erving, still hampered by a strained knee and not playing up to his usual brilliance, had another way of saying the 76'ers are not getting the job done.

"When you have quick players who like to do things fast, there is a tendency to rush the offense — to have an itchy trigger finger. Our gun always seems to be loaded," Doctor J said.

Although there is no shortage of fireworks away from the court, Erving insists the team hasn't lost sight of its expressed goals.

"We said we wanted to be the best team in basketball. We wanted to win our division, compile the best overall record, the best home record, and the best away record," Erving said.

"If we are true to ourselves, true to our convictions, we should overcome all this nonsense and accomplish waht we've discussed. There's no question we have the potential to be the best," he sai.

"It's up to each individual to look inside himself to see if he's willing to give what it takes to win. It's not an impossible situation by any means."

Mat frosh romp

Granada maintained its undefeated record with a 20-0 victory over San Ramon in a frosh football game last night.

Chuck Lennier was the Mats' offensive standout, as he carried the ball 14 for 107 yards, including a 55-yard touchdown run.

Granada's other two touchdowns were scored by Bennie Breazeal on a 55-yard return of an intercepted pass, and by a one-yard run by quarterback Jack Trudeau.

Defensive standouts for the Mats, who are now 6-0, included defensive tackles Steve Coeville and Chuck Soto, and middle linebacker Robert Giachello.

Granada rolled up 325 yards in total offense against San Ramon, which is now 1-5.

Expensive draft opens

NEW YORK — The setting is perfect.

Manhattan's plush Plaza Hotel charges anywhere from $47 to $95 a night for a single room and between $125 and $250 for suites. That's good preparation for the baseball brass checking in because they'll be paying plenty more for many of the players they select in today's free-agent draft.

Some 86 players will be available in three categories and a few of them, like pitchers Mike Torrez and Rich Gossage and outfielders Larry Hisle, Lyman Bostock, and Richie Zisk, are expected to attract seven-figure contract bids after the draft.

Besides players who completed their option years by working without signed contracts in 1977, the draft consists of six-year veterans who have declared for free agency and players who had big league contracts in 1976 but were out-righted to minor league teams this season.

The 1977 draft class lacks the run of top name talent like Reggie Jackson, Don Gullett, Joe Rudi, and the others who were up for grabs a year ago. But there are some outstanding major leaguers available and anxious to see what they can command on baseball's open market place.

That's how Torrez, a 17-game winner with Oakland and the New York Yankees last season, explained his presence in the pool. "I'm curious about my value, what value other teams place on me," he said.

When Torrez came to the Yankees in April, he was unsigned. His agent, Gary Walker, negotiated throughout the season with New York President Gabe Paul.

The Yankees reportedly started at $750,000 for five years and as Torrez' contribution to their world championship season grew, the price went up. By the end of the year, after Torrez had added two World Series victories to his total, the Yankees were prepared to go for $1.5 million.

"If they had offered me in July what they wound up offering me, I would have signed then," said Torrez. But by season's end, the pitcher had decided to find out how much the rest of the teams think he's worth.

The negotiating for Torrez will be carried on with Walker, who is the same agent the Yankees dealt with when they signed the controversial Jackson for $2.9 million last year.

None of this year's free agents can expect to match Jackson's numbers, which were the highest in the first free agent auction. But a range of between $1.5 and $2 million is not unreasonable for some of the players.

Toronto owns the first choice in the draft, followed by Atlanta, Oakland, and the rest of the teams selecting in inverse order of their final won-lost records last season. Ground rules permit each of the eligible players to be drafted 13 times and for his former team to also participate in the bidding.

Mustangs clinch tie

With at least a tie for the title already in hand, the Los Medanos Mustangs venture to Oroville to face Butte College at 1:00 Saturday in a non-conference encounter.

The Mustangs were assured of at least a share of the title when Contra Costa, who is LMC's next opponent, lost 21-14 to Santa Rosa, which eft Don Cadenasso's club the only unbeaten team in the Camino Norte Conference.

Last week's win over Marin boosted the Mustangs into eight place among California Community Colleges and 17th in the country.

Mike Sims, former Pittsburg High star, was selected as LMC's player-of-the-week.

Broncos buck MV

The Northgate Bronco tennis team was seeking revenge and got it, but not without a struggle.

The Broncos, who lost to Monte Vista last week, got revenge by defeating the Mustangs, 6-3, before a packed house Wednesday at Tennis Town.

The struggle was clearly evident as five of the six Northgate wins took three sets, clearly showing the abilities of the two powerladen squads.

The match got off to a sour start for Northgate as Steve Town, one of the topranked players in California, lost 6-2, 6-4 to powerful Tripp Gordon. Northgate as Steve ToIn the first set with the score tied at two-all, Town had a chance to break Gordon's serve, but lost the next three points and fell behind 3-2. Gordon proceeded to click off 12 of the next 14 points against a frustrated Town, who never got untracked.

Town won the first two games of the second set, but Gordon held served twice and broke Town once enroute to a 3-2 lead. Town won the next game to tie the match, but lost three of the next four and the match.

Town, who has beaten Gordon in four previous meetings, wasn't pleased with his play.

"I didn't play that good," he said. "His game is to stay back and hit the ball hard and after a while his serve returns were good so I had to stay back, which isn't my game. He had a real good day. I'm a serve and volley player and he took my game away."

"Gordon was hitting the ball so hard that he just destroyed Steve's game," said Northgate coach Mike Johnson. "Steve's always had a problem staying back. He's either on or off."

Monte Vista took a 2-0 lead when Doug Stone copped a three-set victory over Rich Bohne. It was Bohne's first loss this season, including doubles matches.

Tryouts are on tap for Camp Parks Gymnasium on Thursday evenings begining at 7 p.m. November 10 and 17th. Players who were in the league last year have been mailed registration forms.

SR spikers topple MV, 2-1

San Ramon's volleyball team continued its winning ways in East Bay Athletic League play last night, defeating Monte Vista 2-1.

The Wolves raised their record to 12-1 with the victory, while the Mustangs fell to 3-10. San Ramon clinched the EBAL title earlier in the week.

Monte Vista put up a good effort against San Ramon, winning the first game, 15-10, before dropping the final two, 15-7 and 15-10.

"Our serving really hurt us in the first game, but we came back and served a lot better the rest of the match," said San Ramon coach Mary Ann Paz. The Wolves made five serving errors in the first game, but none thereafter.

In the second game, Wendy Merrick served five straight points to key the Wolves' come-from-behind victory. Chris Cooper served the final three points, while Donna Gallagher played a good all-around game and was the Wolves' top spiker.

San Ramon led all the way in the third game, although Monte Vista stayed within a point or two.

In a junior varsity match, San Ramon remained undefeated with a 15-4, 10-15, 15-7 victory over Monte Vista.

Lisa Overfield was the Wolves' top player.

1	Tennessette (Wales)	114	4
4	Like Boomba (Mahorney)	114	5
5	Ski Royalty (Murphy)	x105	6
2	Betty Kaz (Galarsa)	x109	8
8	Cockade (Thompson)	110	10
7	Lavelle L. (Munoz)	114	10

MISS NOUVART should be in garden spot most of way. FLYING JENNIFER beat top choice in last race. TENNESSETTE may be best of rest.

Longshot — SKI ROYALTY.

4285 — THIRD RACE. 1 1-16 miles. 3 Yr. Olds. Claiming price $5000. Purse $5000.

2	Red Bee Gem (Diaz)	114	3
13	Silver Pin (Mahorney)	114	5-2
14	Smart And Bold (Skinner)	114	7-2
11	Sands Of Time (Delia)	117	4
15	Dumpty's Baby (Arterburn)	114	5
7	Bay Thunder (Skinner)	114	5
9	Mr. Lolo (Galarsa)	x109	6

7	Baggy Man (Arterburn)	114	10
8	Scottish Fling (Ramirez)	112	10
10	Streaking Knight (Ochoa)	114	10

FAJA took similar field wire - to - wire. STRETCH CALL figures in the hunt. HAPPY IDEA could be part of exacta.

Longshot — HAREM'S CHOICE.

4290 — EIGHTH RACE. Six furlongs. 3 & 4 Yr. olds. Allowance. Purse $10000.

4	My Runaway (Baze)	120	3
1	Eagletar (Frazier)	110	2
2	Why Certainly (Thompson)	110	8
5	Bold Combato (Colaneri)	x109	5
3	Eagle Toast (Diaz)	110	6
6	Asian Emperor (Mahorney)	110	10

MY RUNAWAY should be able to track leaders and pull away despite weight. EAGLETAR was top juvenile who hasn't fired best shot yet. WHY CERTAINLY should have lead and may not falter this time.

Longshot — WHY CERTAINLY.

4291 — NINTH RACE. 1 3-16 miles. 3 Yr. Olds. Allowance. Purse $5500.

3	Wantago East (Lobato)	114	4

1	Run For Nathan (Mahorney)	120	5-2
4	Tax Pocket (Couto)	114	5
9	The Hypodermist (Gonzalez)	114	8
6	Inda Win (Galarsa)	x109	6
5	Kennett (Winick)	114	8
9	Penny Charge (Gomez)	114	10

WANTAGO EAST figures well with weights. NEW SPIN just won by three and won't mind added 16th. DUSKY HILL won race before last by seven.

Longshot — THE HYPODERMIST.

Best Bet — RUNAWAY SPIRIT in First.

Best Chance Bet — SPORTING AL in Fifth.

VW's lineup of economy and luxury cars

AUTOMOTIVE

Volkswagen's 1978 lineup includes gasoline-and diesel-powered Rabbits that are more economical than before, luxurious Dashers and sporty Sciroccos with new styling, the voluminous Bus and the classic Beetle Convertible.

According to Environmental Protection Agency figures, the 1978 Rabbit with manual transmission delivers 38 miles per gallon on the highway and 25 mpg in the city — one mile per gallon more than last year's model. The Rabbit Diesel, the EPA's top-rated car, obtains one more mile per gallon over last year too: 53 mpg highway, 40 mpg city.

In addition to the basic Rabbit, two other models are available: the Rabbit "C" with many custom features and the Rabbit "L" with deluxe interior and styling touches. Their interiors feature new instrument panels, and more luxurious upholstery and carpeting.

All Rabbits have a large rear hatch as standard equipment and with the rear seat folded they have a high, wide cargo area of ample size: 38.9 cubic feet measured to the roof.

Richard L. Mugg, vice president in charge of Volkswagen of America's Volkswagen Division, said, "We are no longer a one-model company.

"We have a range of cars that includes the world's first affordable diesel, with its exceptional economy, a race-proven sports coupe, the practical and elegant Dashers, our much-copied Bus and a four-place Convertible.

"Each model has its own distinct characteristics so that Volkswagen dealers can appeal to the entire spectrum of the expanding small car market."

The Dasher is being offered with dual headlights, a re-styled and lowered radiator grille, wrap-around front turn signals and a functional aerodynamic spoiler under the front bumper. Dashers are available as two-door hatchbacks, four-door sedans and four-door wagons.

The rear taillights wrap around, the dashboard has been redesigned and the hatchback and trunk opening have been enlarged to extend down to the bumper for easier loading. Crushed velour is used for the upholstery, the floor is covered with high quality cut pile carpeting and sound proofing has been increased.

Mechanical improvements include a large booster for the standard-equipment power brakes and increased swept area for the front disc brakes to increase pad life expectancy by about 45 percent.

A full five-passenger car the Dasher combines economy with performance. With the manual transmission, it is rated at 37 miles per gallon on the highway and 23 mpg in the city, according to the EPA. Unlike some economical cars, it has peppy performance. It will accelerate from zero to 60 mph in 12.2 seconds and has a rated top speed of 104 mph.

The 1978 Scirocco — a sports coupe that's equally at home on the road or the race track — has a new sleeker front end, restyled side and rear trim, a wood-grained dashboard, remote control side view mirror and improved sound insulation.

Under the skin it has a larger radiator and a bigger booster for the standard equipment power disc/drum brakes.

Known for its excellent handling and performance (it will zip from zero to 60 mph in 11.6 seconds and has a test track top speed of 103 mph), the 1978 Scirocco delivers 38 miles per gallon on the highway and 25 mpg in the city, according to EPA estimates.

The engine in the 1978 VW Bus runs more quietly and requires a bit less maintenance service, thanks to the use of hydraulic valve lifters which eliminate the need for valve adjustments.

An eminently practical design for large families or others who have lots to carry, the Bus now has a restyled steering wheel and two large sliding windows in the passenger compartment.

The Bus is available with seven or nine seats — or as a Kombi for do-it-yourself vanners. It is also available as a Campmobile that can accommodate up to five persons and can be equipped with an electric refrigerator, running water and a LP gas stove.

Rounding out the 1978 VW line up is the perky Beetle Convertible. A four-seater — one of two available on the market — it has traditional Beetle dependability and is powered by an air cooled fuel-injection engine. It has rack and pinion steering and four-wheel independent suspension.

The convertible has reclining front seats and the top is a carefully tailored, padded unit for sound and weather insulation.

All 1978 VWs, available from more than a thousand franchised dealers, carry a 12-month, 20,000-mile limited warranty.

VW's top of the line Dasher has new styling for 1978.

Chrysler breaks mark for year truck sales

Detroit — Chrysler Corporation shattered the 1976 model year truck sales record with 1977 model year truck sales of 467,197, making the 1977 model year truck sales the highest in the corporation's history.

Al Imber, manager of Chrysler's truck sales, said 1977 model year sales were up 15 per cent from the 406,654 trucks sold in the 1976 model year.

Imber said the record shattering sales can be traced to the increased use of trucks for personal transportation.

"What's happened to the use of trucks is like what happened to the use of jeans. Not very long ago both were considered work items. Now both are considered part of being natural," he said. "They are the newest status symbol."

"Light duty trucks and vans offer today's buyers the convenience and comfort of passenger cars while providing versatility impossible to find in a car," the truck sales manager continued.

Imber said more and more women are finding that trucks are comfortable and easy to manage in traffic. Both men and women are finding that today's light duty trucks fill more than just a basic transportation or hauling need.

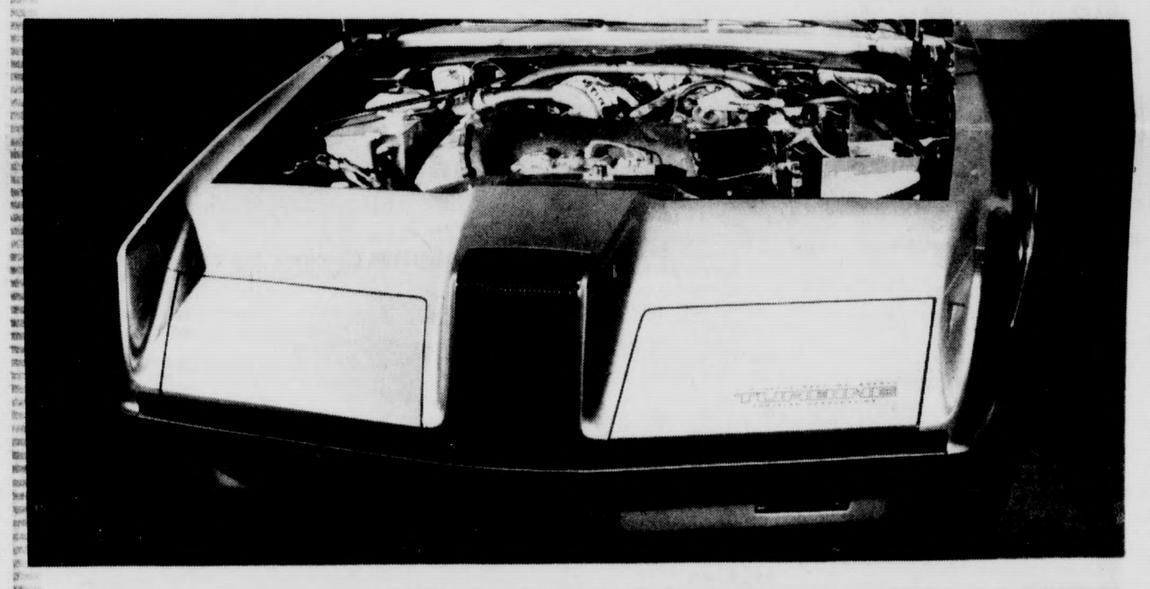
Dodge's line of Adult Toys — Street Van, Warlock, Macho Power Wagon and 4 by 4 Dodge (Macho Ramcharger) — fill today's need for "fun trucking."

Macho Power Wagon and 4 by 4 Dodge were introduced to help capture a bigger share of the growing four-wheel drive market.

"The Dodge Macho units can be the answer sought by buyers who are looking for different ways to express their love of vehicles and driving," Imber said. "The Macho units are 'tough' and sporty looking on the street as well as off road."

Imber explained that the truck market in the last few years has gone from a commercially oriented market to almost 50 per cent personal use. This is because of the changes in attitudes toward the "Tennessee Hardtop".

"Today's buyer is looking at trucks differently that the buyer did a few years ago. Today's buyer is not looking for a motorized wheelbarrow. People make a personal statement about themselves with the vehicle they drive. And we think our Adut Toys help them make that statement — fun trucking," Imber said.



Turbine concept car with a new dramatic aerodynamic design has been built for the U.S. Department of Energy by Chrysler Corp. The base car is a Chrysler LeBaron, equipped with retractable headlamp doors and a T-bar roof, and a polyurethane "soft" front end.

Mercury Zephyr: plenty of room

Lincoln-Mercury Division's new compact Mercury Zephyrs will offer roomy interiors, agile handling, excellent fuel economy and clean styling.

The Zephyr lineup will include two- and four-door sedans, a station wagon and — later in the year — a stylish two-door sports coupe.

"We engineered efficiency and economy into the Zephrys," said Walter S. Walla, Ford Motor Company vice president and Lincoln-Mercury Division general manager. "Their precise handling, economical fuel usage and outstanding passenger and luggage capacity make them some of the best values we have ever offered American car buyers."

All Zephyr models are on a 105.5-inch wheelbase with an overall length of 193.8 inches — except the sports coupe which will be two inches longer overall. Their curb weights range from 2,706 pounds for the base two-door sedan to 2,879 pounds for the base station wagon.

Lightweight and with a modern approach to design and engineering, the Zephyrs are extraordinarily roomy cars. For example, although it is about the same size as the Comet it will replace in the Lincoln-Mercury lineup, the two-door Zephyr is nearly 300 pounds lighter than its predecessor and has much more passenger and luggage room.

In the front passenger area, the two-door Zephyr has 1.0 inches more head room, 1.2 inches more leg room, 2.4 inches more shoulder room and 2.6 inches more hip room than the two-door Comet. In the rear, the Zephyr's roominess is even more obvious. There the two-door Zephyr has an advantage of 1.7 inches in head room, 3.4 inches in leg room, 3.5 inches in shoulder room and a huge 16 inches of additonal hip room.

At 16.8 cubic feet, the Zephyr's luggage compartment provides 48 per cent more storage space than that of its predecessor. With the rear seat folded down, the Zephyr station wagon has 79.5 cubic feet of cargo volume — 39 per cent more than the smaller Mercury Bobcat wagon and 84 per cent of the capacity provided by the full-sized Mercury Marquis station wagon.

Mechanical highlights include a strut-type front suspension adapted from that used on some imported cars; a smooth-riding, four-link, coil-spring rear suspension similar to that used on the Mercury Cougar; precise rack-and -pinion steering with a variable-ratio power option; a new lighweight, cast - center - section rear axle, and a unitized body designed with computer analysis to provide a combination of strength and light weight.

The standard power team — except in high-altitude areas — is a 2.3-liter 2V, four-cylinder engine and four-speed manual transmission (not available on station wagons until later this year). A 3.3-liter 1V, six-cylinder engine and automatic transmission are required in high-altitude areas on the sedans and the sports coupe. On station wagons, a 5.0-liter 2V, V-8 engine and automatic transmission are required in high-altitude areas.

The car's cleanly styled front end is highlighted by a vertical-theme grille and dual rectangular headlights. Large, horizontal taillamps dominate the rear of the sedans and sport coupe. Strong, lightweight, extruded-aluminum bumpers are standard. The low cowl and beltline, sloping hood, thin roof pillars and broad expanses of glass provide excellent visibility.

The new instrument panel features a two-pod cluster with easily read gauges and convenient controls. The controls for the horn, turn signals, headlamp dimmer and windshield wiper/washer are carried on two stalks mounted on the steering column.

The ES option also includes a rear stabilizer bar and special suspension.

Sales promo man starts this month

DETROIT — Robert F. Henry has been named sales promotion manager for Chrysler International, effective November 1, according to Peter A. Dow, Chrysler Corporation's director of advertising.

Henry's responsibilities are the development and coordination of international sales promotion materials as well as liaison between national and international sales promotion groups. He will report to Dick Cook, advertising and sales promotion manager, Chrysler International.

Henry joined Chrysler Corporation in 1955 as the coordinator for printed advertising materials for the Plymouth Division. Since then, he has held key positions in advertising, sales promotion and marketing groups for the corporation, including Plymouth sales promotion manager, Chrysler and Plymouth advprtising manager, and Dodge car and truck advertising manager.

He has also worked for J. Walter Thompson.

Henry's most recent Chrysler assignment was with the corporation's market strategies group.

Henry attended Wayne University and the University of Detroit.

He and his wife Betty and five children reside in Bloomfield Hills.

No threat seen in Pleasanton funds for low income projects

PLEASANTON — A bill signed by President Jimmy Carter a couple of weeks ago regulating fourth-year Housing and Community Development (HCD) Act funds shouldn't affect city HCD projects, has at least one city staffer worried.

The bill set up a second formula for a fund applications expecially designated for "entitlement" cities, meaning large deteriorating cities. But the second formula won't take funds away from small cities such as Pleasanton and Livermore, according to a Housing and Urban Development official in San Francisco.

Funds totaling approximately $157,000 from HCD could pay for six projects approved by the Human Services Commission this week and sent on for approval by the city council. Such money is supposed to be used to "primarily" help low or moderate income persons. Although one HUD official says the Carter administration has "tightened up a bit" on how small cities with few poor use the money, nonetheless Pleasanton is expected to receive about the same amount of money as last year.

Human Service Commissioners Wednesday night divided the expected $157,000 between six projects giving top priority to $25,000 for the Garnet Austin Rehabilitation Center to use as seed money in applying for foundation grants.

Commissioners also allocated $75,000 for a storm drain outfall line from Bernal Avenue to St. Mary's Street, $40,000 for renovating the Veterans Memorial building for a senior citizens center, $10,000 for an emergency alarm system in Kottinger Place, $5,000 to build ramps for the handicapped, and $1,850 to the Eden Council for Hope and Opportunity.

The city will also receive $105,000 to fund CETA worker positions, Bob Caporusso, director of human resources, learned yesterday.

That money will fund less than half the 41 CETA positions applied for in 17 proposals given to the commission. Commissioners plan to list which positions should get top priority at their next meeting in December.

Ties to late John F. Kennedy make Pierre popular in France

PARIS (AP) — Fourteen years after he served in the Kennedy White House, Pierre Salinger is still puffing his cigar around Paris salons and explaining America to the French.

"It was kind of an accident that I got to where I am," Salinger said in an interview with The Associated Press. "My calling card was that I was associated with the Kennedys. And the French loved the Kennedys."

The love affair for the Kennedys soon turned into infatuation for Pierre, and before he knew it, the former presidential press secretary was cutting out a tidy fiefdom in the French media, one which he rules from his no-frills office on the fourth floor of L'Express, a national newsweekly.

Salinger has taken an unlikely route from the White House pressroom to become the man most readily tapped by the French media to explain America. First came a seat in the U.S. Senate, than an executive post at Continental Airlines. After that, a stint as adviser to Sen. George McGovern, a role as consul-general in a French film, a TV commentator at the 1976 Winter Olympics and a seat on the jury at the Cannes Film Festival.

Today Salinger is a frequent commentator on French TV and radio and writes a weekly column on U.S. affairs for L'Express. He is also something of a darling of the French media and social scene, a privilege at least partly explained by the fact that his wife and mother are French-born.

Four years in France have not dulled the flair that made Salinger a late night fixture in Kennedy's Washington. He is gregarious, enterprising, jovial and speaks French fluently, but with an American accent.

"My American accent is certainly an asset. I had lunch with Giscard (French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing) one day. He had seen me on TV and Franco-American relations were going bad. Giscard turned to me and said: "I want to compliment you. You are speaking French worse and worse."

As a former presidential press secretary, first for Kennedy and then more briefly for Lyndon Johnson, Salinger's edge is undeniable. He sees America from the outside in and from the inside out.

"I have an advantage over the other correspondents. I know the White House, the informational channels.

Government controls irk Alameda County ranchers

PLEASANTON — Alameda County farmers and ranchers, many with their backs to the wall financially after two years of drought, are tired of government interference with agricultural practices.

That was the message members of the Alameda County Agricultural Advisory Committee (AAC) gave Wednesday night.

The AAC met to prepare a statement to the county board of supervisors evaluating the the county's surface runoff management plan. The plan, named 208 nationwide after its section in 1972's federal Clean Water Act, seeks to establish ways of water pollution caused by soil erosion.

The AAC members were generally unimpressed by the report and spent almost three hours dissecting it to point out their specific disagreements.

Generally the AAC members opposed any provision of the report advocating further restrictions on farm or range methods now practiced. The report, written by county staffers, was dismissed as too vague or necessary in many parts.

Specific references the AAC members found objectionable:

*Recommendation of establishment of a county animal management advisory committee to set policies and guidelines for domestic animal control.

*Placing enforcement of erosion control under the Resource Conservation District (RCD) or any other agency.

*Setting standards for rural soil erosion control and establishing a permit system to control grading and filling.

*The reference to "discing," a common practice for turning under the soil, as a contributing factor to erosion and water pollution.

The possibility of the county setting standards for animal management was the most galling to the AAC but overall comments reflected skepticism of any agency interference. Even the RCD board, which is currently comprised of agriculturalists and staffed by the federal Soil Conservation Service, was nixed as a possible agency for implementing the runoff plan in rural areas because many AAC members doubted the board would remain pro-farmer.

Underlying criticism of the report was the AAC's belief that agriculture does not contribute to pollution on a scale comparable with the impact of urban communities. That, and skepticism of all agencies after the Ridgelands report which the AAC rejected, would make the 208 recommendations hard to swallow.

GOPleads opponents to treaty

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican fund raisers are wading into the Panama Canal issue under the banner of Ronald Reagan, asking for GOP campaign contributions to defeat President Carter's treaty.

"I'm convinced the only ways to defeat the Carter negotiated treaty is to conduct a full-fledged campaign to alert citizens to the dangers Republicans see in this treaty," Reagan said in a massmailed letter sent out by the Republican National Committee.

That overlooks the fact that Gerald R. Ford would have negotiated the treaty in a Republican White House if he'd managed to win the election.

It also says something about the clout of the titular leader in either political party, which usually peaks at negligible. Ford signed a fund-raising letter for the Republican National Committee five weeks ago, and it is drawing big money, about $1 million, according to a GOP spokesman.

That mailing went out together with a questionnaire on major issues. It can hardly have been an accident thatthe survey didn't mention the canal. There's more political money to be had in opposing the treaty than in supporting it.

"Believe me, without your support, the canal is as good as gone," Reagan said in his letter, mailed to about 400,000 prospective donors.

Along with the request for Republican contributions, the Reagan generally prefers to work alone these days. He has his own organization, Citizens for the Republic, to promote his conservative causeand his political future.

But the Republican National Committee mailing beats anyhing he could do solo. The committee, always conservative and never sold on Ford's canal policy, voted Sept. 30 to denounce the treaty Carter signed.

The Reagan letter makes the canal a Republican issue far more forcefully than did the predictable committee resolution.

"I've read this treaty carefully from cover to cover," Reagan writes. "And in my honest opinion, it's a line by line blueprint for potential disaster for our country."

Having said that, and having asked for money to defeat Democrats next year, Reagan goes on to say that "this isn't a partisan issue" because the polls reflect widespread public opposition to the treaty.

He might also have noted that there are divisions, in both parties on the question.

Still, Republican sponsorship of his letter and petition drive represents a major step toward making it a clear partisan issue in 1978. Party officials say they are inviting GOP leaders to sign fundraising letters on issues of their choosing. It lets the politician have his say and it raises moneyfor the GOP treasure.

There's nothing unusual in the concept. Both parties send out fundraising letters over the signatures of their stars. The letters usually talk a bit about issues, so blandly as to make sure no one takes offense, denounce the other party, and ask for money.

By the time the money starts arriving, the issues have been forgotten.

That is not Reagan's way. His political career began with a conservative fund-raising appeal, to help pay for the presidential campaign of Sen. Barry Goldwater 13 years ago. He sells his philosophy while he's asking for money.

"We'll get some letters from people who oppose Reagan's position on the canal," a Republican official said. But they expect a lot more letters - and checks - from people who support it.

CITY COUNCIL OF THE
CITY OF PLEASANTON
ALAMEDA COUNTY
CALIFORNIA
ORDINANCE NO. 834

AN ORDINANCE REZONING APPROXIMATELY 2.5 ACRES OF LAND LOCATED BETWEEN THE ARROYO DEL VALLE AND THE FUTURE DEL VALLE PARKWAY, APPROXIMATELY 1600 FEET EAST OF HOPYARD ROAD, FROM RM-200 (MULTIPLE FAMILY RESIDENTIAL) DISTRICT TO PUD (PLANNED UNIT DEVELOPMENT) DISTRICT, AND APPROVING A DEVELOPMENT PLAN FOR A 22-UNIT TOWNHOUSE COMPLEX ON THE WESTERLY FOUR-FIFTHS OF THE PROPERTY, AND AMENDING THE ZONING MAP OF THE CITY OF PLEASANTON ACCORDINGLY (ZONING UNIT MAP #168)

THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF PLEASANTON DOES ORDAIN AS FOLLOWS:

Section 1. Rezones the parcel of land 2.56 acres in size owned by Darwin Datwyler, located between the Arroyo del Valle and the future Del Valle Parkway, approximately 1600 feet east of Hopyard Road from RM-2000 (Multiple Family Residential) District to PUD (Planned Unit Development) District, (as more particularly described in Zoning Unit Map No. 168 attached hereto and incorporated herein by reference), and approves a development plan for a 22-unit townhouse complex on the westerly four-fifths of the property, subject to the following conditions:

1. That the development be substantially as shown on the development plan, Exhibit A, and the carport elevations, Exhibit B, on file with the Planning Department, except that the utility shed be removed; that all parking spaces within carports be a minimum of ten feet by 20 feet, and that units 18 through 22 be moved a minimum of 8 feet to the west and that the additional space which is gained behind the units be developed in private rear yard areas.
2. That 6 inch high concrete curbs be installed between paved and landscaped areas.
3. That all ducts, meters, air conditioning equipment, and all other mechanical equipment, whether on the ground on the structure or elsewhere be reasonably screened from public view with materials architecturally compatible with the main structure (it is especially important that gas and electric meters be completely screened from public view).
4. That the street numbers of all buildings be posted so as to be easily read from the street at all times, day and night.
5. That all lighting be constructed in such a manner that glare is directed away from surrounding properties and public right-of-ways.
6. That all mechanical equipment be constructed in such a manner that noise emanating from it will not be perceptible at or beyond the property plane of the subject property in a normal environment for that zoning district.
7. That if signing is desired for the development an overall comprehensive signing program be submitted to the City for review under separate application.
8. That all trees used in landscaping be a minimum of 15 gallons in size and all shrubs a minimum of 5 gallons.
9. That all trash and refuse be contained completely within enclosed areas which are architecturally compatible with the main structure.
10. That silhouette low-level lighting be provided adjacent to all buildings.
11. That for the purpose of future construction on the subject property, the site requirements of the RM-2000 District be followed.
12. That the developer pay any and all fees that the property may be subject to.
13. That all parking spaces be striped and provided with wheel-stops unless they are fronted by concrete curbs in which case sufficient area shall be provided beyond the ends of all parking spaces to accommodate the overhang of automobiles.
14. That the applicant enter into an agreement with the City, approvedr proved by the City Attorney, which guarantees that all landscaping included in this project shall be maintained in a healthful, attractive and weedfree manner. Said agreement shall be recorded and shall run with the land for the duration of the existence of the structures located on the subject property.
15. That all dwelling units in the development be constructed to meet the P.G.&E. energy conservation home standards promulgated by P.G.&E. in 1976.
16. That the following water conserving plumbing fixtures be installed:
A. Low flush water closets
B. Shower flow control heads
C. Aerators in interior closets
D. Insulation of hot water lines
17. That the developer submit improvement plans for that portion of the Del Valle Parkway which developer is obligated by ordinance to construct, designed by a registered civil engineer, for review and approval by the Director of Engineering Services. These plans shall include coordination of necessarChurch parcel to the north across the Del Valle Parkwat and provision for an adequate turn-around at the eastern terminus of the Del Valle Parkway.
18. That the developer dedicate to the City as easement for recreational purposes over the land south of the top of the bank of the Arroyo Del Valle.
19. That the developer submit a building permit survey and a site development plan in accordance with the Survey Ordinance (Article 3, Chapter 3, Title II) and that these plans be approved by the Director of Engineering Services prior to the issuance of a building permit.
20. That the site development plan include all required information to design and construct site grading, paving, and drainage.
21. That the paving sections for the parking areas be designed on the basis of an "R" Value test and Traffic Index to carry the anticipated traffic loads. This design shall be subject to the approval of the Director of Engineering Services. The minimum paving section shall be 2 inch A.C. on 5 inch A.B. The minimum A.C. pavement slope shall be 1%.
22. That all utilities required to serve this development be installed underground.
23. That the developer install street frontage improvements per ordinance to the satisfaction of the Director of Engineering Services. These improvements shall include, but are not necessarily limited to, grading, curb and gutter, sidewalk, paving, storm drain, sanitary sewer, water facilities, street liol devices.
24. That the developer's contractor obtain an encroachment permit from the City prior to construction.
25. That the developer install street trees as required per ordinance.
26. That the emergency phone number of the fire department be posted near all telephones on the site immediately following the beginning of construction.
27. That the construction site be kept free of fire hazards from the start of construction until final inspection.
28. Agree to sign recordable document prepared by City Attorney that applccant is aware of PSSA v. City Council litigation, possible ramifications of that litigation and any improvements which are lost due to said litigation are at developer's expense.
29. An extension of time on existing sewer permits will be given which is equivalent to the amount of time during which the ability of applicant to use said permits is affected by the PSSA v. City litigation.

Section 2. The Zoning Map of the City of Pleasanton dated, October 18, 1960, on file with the City Clerk, designating and dividing the City into zoning districts is hereby amended in accordance with the action set forth in Section 1 above.

Section 3. Zoning Unit Map No. 168 dated, October 18, 1977, on file with the City Clerk of the City of Pleasanton, a copy of which is attached hereto as Exhibit A and made a part hereof by reference designates said land use and zoning district.

Section 4. Pursuant to Sec.2-8.37 (c) and Sec.2-8.35, Article 14, Chapter 2, Title II of the Ordinance Code of the City of Pleasanton, the City Council approves the Development Plan considered concurrently with the rezoning pursuant to Section 1 above.

Section 5. The Development Plan approved by Section 4 above shall be subject to the conditions set forth in Planning Commission Resolution No. 1564 (adopted by the Planning Commission on September 14, 1977), said conditions having been included in the conditions set forth in Section 1 of this ordinance.

Section 6. This ordinance shall become effective thirty (30) days after the date of its final passage and adoption.

Section 7. This ordinance shall be published once within fifteen- culation, published in the City of Pleasanton.

INTRODUCED at a regular meeting of the City Council of the City of Pleasanton on October 11, 1977.

ADOPTED at a regular meeting of the City Council of the City of Pleasanton on October 25, 1977, by the following vote.

Sandia Lab pays staffers honors

Sandia Laboratories has honored 13 veteran employees in recognition of their service in the Energy Research Development program. The employees were presented with jewelry bearing sented to Leo Gutierrez, of School Street, and Whitley C. Scrivner, Guilford Avenue, both of Livermore.

Harold A. Krieger, Sungold Circle, Livermore, received a 25 year award.

Those serving 20 years receiving awards included Berton E. Barker, Carlton M. Furnberg and Frank A. Maestas, all of Livermore, and William D. Zinke, Pleasanton.

Fifteen-year awards went to Emily A. Joiner, Donald D. Richardson, Donald W. Sadler and Melvin E. West, all of Livermore; Harry G. Lauderbaugh of Tracy and Carl A. Wackerly of Manteca.

County nixes New Town again

OAKLAND — Alameda County supervisors rejected Harlan Geldermann's New Town proposal on the same 3-2 vote yesterday on which they turned it down last month.

The second vote was a routine one because of county ordinance requirements.

Supervisor Fred Cooper tried to get the supervisors to approve New Town yesterday by framing it in these terms: turn down various 50 to 1,500 unit developments proposed to be scattered around the area and and vote in New Town instead.

But Supervisors Valerie Raymond, John George, and Joseph Bort remained opposed to New Town.

Cooper argued that New Town would concentrate services in one big community, instead of spreading them out among many small ones around the Valley.

Raymond, who opposed both New Town and the scattered developments, said development ought to occur in the cities, where there is water and sewer capacity planned for it.

Cooper agreed that development in the cities is the best solution, but growth has slowed there and as a result people are moving to Tracy and Vacaville to buy homes in the $40,000 to $50,000 range.

Raymond replied that neither New Town nor scattered development has proven it will offer homes any cheaper than Livermore or Pleasanton.

George cast the swing vote which approved the scattered development. He said he voted against New Town to give Valley residents what they wanted, but "some growth is necessary outside the cities."

Raymond and Bort dissented on approving the scattered developments. They include:

*A 4,500 person subdivision on 200 acres south of Chabot College Valley Campus on Collier Canyon Road.

*Conrad Moldt's property, capable of 600 homes, east of Pleasanton Meadows near El Charro Road.

*Carl Nipper's plan for homes on the Pleasanton Ridge. The specific plan has been expanded from 95 to 120 units, so supervisors referred it back to the planning commission for a new look.

Supervisors also repealed a previous ban till 1985 on construction on Moldt's property.

They also heard Livermore conservationist Margaret Tracy call for raising the minimum agricultural parcel in grazing lands from 100 acres to 500 or 1,000 acres. Ranchers have told her that it's realistically the minimum anyone can operate economically for grazing these days.

Supervisors referred Tracy's suggestion to the county's agricultural advisory commission for a recommendation.

Supervisors also reaffirmed a "rural residential" designation for 173 acres east of Pleasanton in the vicinity of Mohr and Martin Avenues. They referred to the planning commission the question of how big the lots in that area should be.

Although the various scattered developments were okayed for the county's general plan yesterday, left unresolved were the questions of how water and sewer services would be obtained for each one.

Part of that question, which will affect Nipper first, is a county policy on package sewage treatment plants, still unresolved by supervisors.

YOUTILITY.

THE 1978 TOYOTA SR-5 LONG BED SPORT TRUCK. NO MATTER WHAT YOU USE A TRUCK FOR, YOU CAN'T BUY A BETTER COMBINATION OF POWER, RELIABILITY, ECONOMY, GOOD LOOKS AND TOYOTA TOUGHNESS.

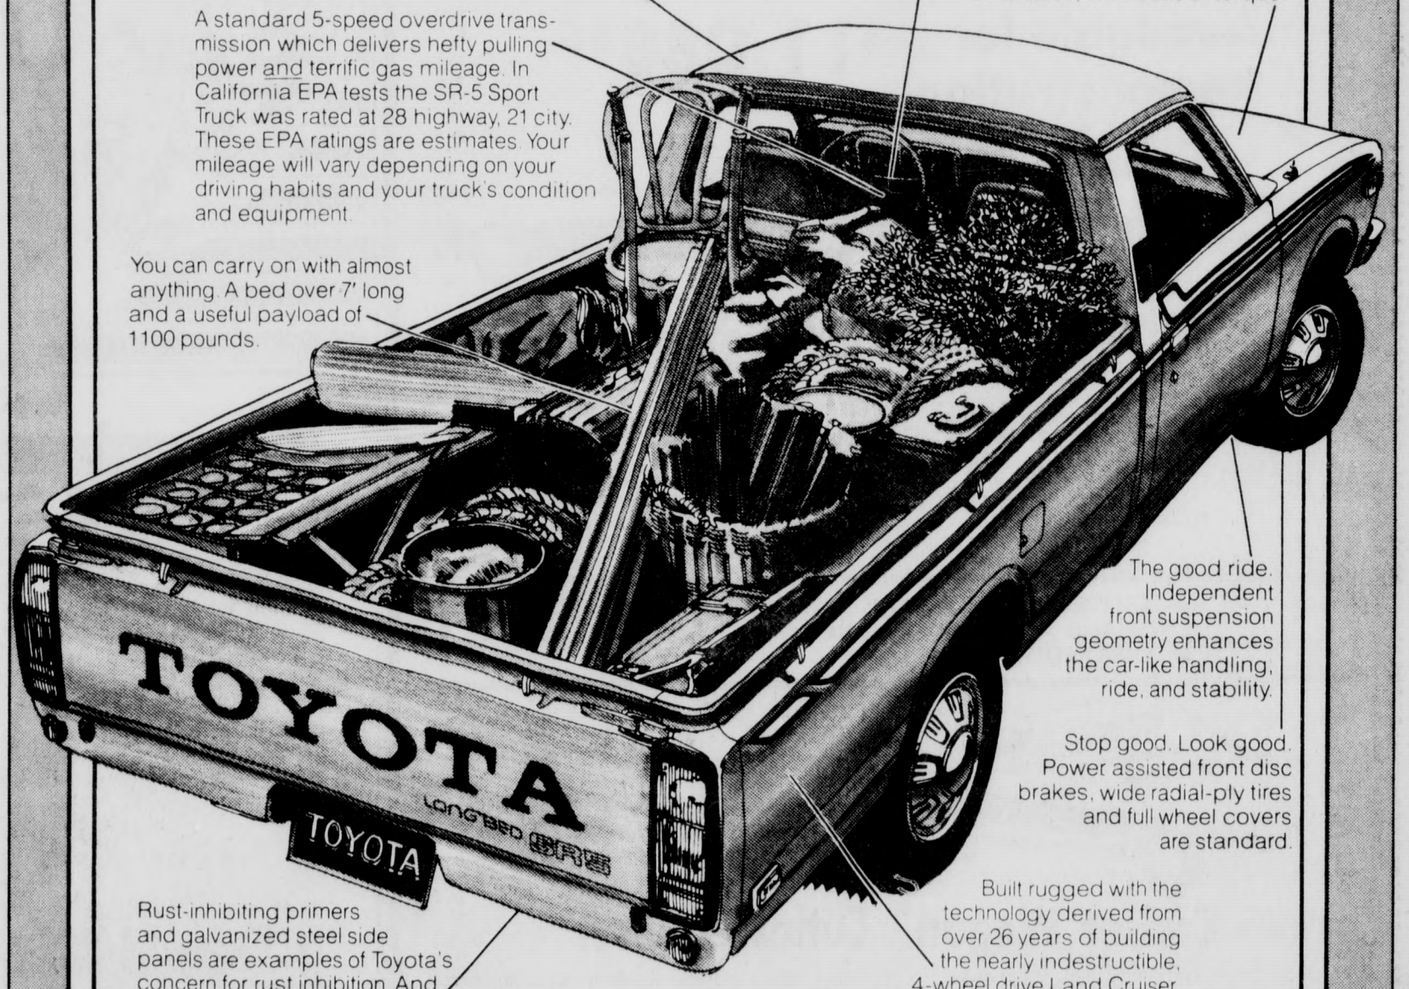
In this cab, you're king. Hi-back bucket seats, wall-to-wall plush carpeting, AM/FM radio, center console and tinted glass, all standard.

A fully transistorized ignition helps make for sure, dependable starting in any weather.

A rugged 2.2 liter, overhead cam power plant. The biggest standard engine displacement in its class, with loads of torque.

A standard 5-speed overdrive transmission which delivers hefty pulling power and terrific gas mileage. In California EPA tests the SR-5 Sport Truck was rated at 28 highway, 21 city. These EPA ratings are estimates. Your mileage will vary depending on your driving habits and your truck's condition and equipment.

You can carry on with almost anything. A bed over 7' long and a useful payload of 1100 pounds.



The good ride. Independent front suspension geometry enhances the car-like handling, ride, and stability.

Stop good. Look good. Power assisted front disc brakes, wide radial-ply tires and full wheel covers are standard.

Built rugged with the technology derived from over 26 years of building the nearly indestructible, 4-wheel drive Land Cruiser.

Rust-inhibiting primers and galvanized steel side panels are examples of Toyota's concern for rust inhibition. And more reasons why we say, "If you can find a better built truck than a Toyota... buy it."

The 1978 Toyota SR-5 Long Bed Sport Truck. Just one of 6 Toyota Trucks. You'll probably find your reason for truckin' in a Toyota.
